ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 6.—British, American and Canadian troops, spurred by the fall of Catania, slashed northward and Eastward into the enemy's last Sicilian bridgehead today, carrying to within some 50 miles of Messina itself.

The advancing American Seventh army, a communique issued at Allied headquarters announced, occupied the junction town of Gagliano as it drove along the island's north coastal Regio and unofficial reports from the front placed the doughboys a mile and a half beyond San Fratello, 12 miles east of San Stefano.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, In North Africa, Aug. 6.—A heavy night bombardment of Axis troop concentrations and shipping around the ferry terminal of Messina, last remaining port in the hands of the Germans and Italians on the island of Sicily, was disclosed today by headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The attack on Messina was carried out by Allied bombing planes as part of the campaign to bottle up and prevent the escape of Axis troops across the Strait of Messina to the Italian mainland as Allied armies converge on Messina along the north and east coast.

Widespread aerial forays were maintained against other German and Italian communication centers and fortified positions in the steadily shrinking Messina bridgehead.

CATANIA FALL DOOMS SICILY

Allied forces drove forward all along the line in Sicily following the capture of bitterly-contested Catania. The American Seventh Army in the north moved toward Messina (1) and Bronte (2). Americans and Canadians also were driving on Adrano (3) after taking Paterno (4). Catania (5) fell to the British Eighth Army in a furious attack which routed the German Goering division. The Axis' last chance to delay Sicily's fall vanished. (International)

Messina Bridgehead Is Kept Under Day And Night Attack

(International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 6.—American Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lightning fighters, and night flying British Wellington bombers today are engaged in concerted day and night attacks against Axis attempts to escape from Sicily by way of the Messina bridgehead.

Aircraft crews report that beaches around Messina are clogged with light craft attempting to remove the hapless German and Italian troops and offer the principal target for bombs and machine-gun fire.

Docks and the industrial area of Messina have been especially hard hit by the heavy Fortresses, crews of which reported that they failed to encounter enemy fighters. Anti-aircraft fire was described as moderate.

Maj. Gen. Stratemeyer Reported In India

Former Chief Of Air Staff Of U. S. Army Arrives In Far Eastern Zone

By JOSEPH A. BORS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Important developments in the far eastern war zone were foreshadowed today by the arrival in India of Maj. Gen. George Stratemeyer, former chief of the air staff of the U. S. army air forces on a secret new assignment.

When the War department on July 27 announced Stratemeyer's transfer from the post of air staff chief, it merely said he was being given an "undisclosed assignment of extreme importance."

According to dispatches from India, Stratemeyer told newsmen that he could not discuss his assignment until he conferred with Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell, commander of American forces in China, Burma and India.

Military spokesmen in Washington declined to discuss Stratemeyer's new assignment, but his arrival in the Far East and his activities during recent months raised the following possibilities:

1. That he might replace Stillwell, an infantry man, because air will play a vital part in the eventual offensive to oust the Japs from Burma, China and Indo-China.

2. That he might be made supreme commander of Allied forces in the India, China, Burma area a post left vacant when Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell was removed to become viceroy of India.

3. That he might be given an entirely new command in line with President Roosevelt's recent promise that Japan would be attacked from the "north, east, south and west"

Hunt Husband In 'Torch Crime'

Charred And Battered Body Of Indiana County Woman Found

(International News Service)

INDIANA, Pa., Aug. 6.—Deputy sheriffs, state police and other peace officers combed Indiana county today for Blair Sink, 31-year-old Brush Valley resident wanted in connection with the "human torch" slaying of his 19-year-old wife late Tuesday night.

Sink disappeared shortly before his wife's charred and battered body was found about 300 yards from their isolated home near Indiana.

Sheriff J. Clair Irvin, in reconstructing the crime, said the killer apparently choked and stoned the young woman until she was insensible, then poured kerosene over her body and the family car nearby, and set both afire. Later, the sheriff added, the killer fired five .22 calibre bullets into her body.

Sink, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Koozer, left his two-year-old son, William, with a neighbor late Tuesday night, and disappeared The child is now being cared for by the fugitive's father, John Sink of Homer City.

The slayer was thought to have either burned or injured himself sometime during the evening, since bandages and mercurochrome were found scattered in the deserted home.

Koozer said 40 men participated in the search last night, and that a like number were out today again No tangible clues have been unearthed as yet, but the deputy sheriff expressed confidence that "we'll catch up with him in a day or two unless he has cleared out of the county altogether."

City and School Treasurer C. C McKibben today announced a record payment of school taxes during the month of July when $613,069.32 was paid. The tax duplicate for 1943 is $928,242.15.

City tax paid in July was $19,766.72 and a total so far paid amounts to $310,169.47.

Swedish Airplane Is Fired Upon By Nazi Merchant Ship

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Relations between Germany and Sweden, already strained because of the latter's cancellation of the Nazi troop transit privilege through Swedish territory, worsened today when a merchant ship of the Reich fired upon a Swedish reconnaissance plane.

The plane, damaged, managed to reach its base, a broadcast of the Motala radio, heard by the U. S. foreign broadcast intelligence service, reported.

The aircraft was flying over the Gulf of Bothnia, "near the border between Swedish and international waters" and off the Swedish province of Vasterbottens, when the incident occurred, the announcer said.

"Investigations . . . are taking place," he added.

STORK FINALLY LETS 'COTTON ED' GO HOME

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Sen. Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith (D), S. C., can now take the vacation that all his colleagues in the senate have been enjoying since the summer recess of congress began on July 9.

The secret of why the senate's oldest member in point of service has remained in Washington came out today when Ellison Durant Smith, the fourth, arrived with the stork at Columbia hospital.

The newest "Cotton Ed" was born early this morning to Mrs. Vivian Manning Smith, daughter-in-law of the senator and weighs slightly over six pounds.

His father is Ellison Durant Smith, clerk of the senate agriculture committee and son of the senator.

Four times since the summer recess began Sen. Smith has cancelled pullman reservations for a trip home because of the failure of his grandson to answer the roll call.

Belgorod-Orel Victories Spur Soviet Advance

Entire German Line In South Russia Is Now Threatened With Collapse

RUSSIAN FORCES SMASHING AHEAD

By NATALIA RENE
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, Aug. 6.—The entire German line of fortifications in South Russia was threatened with collapse today as victorious Red army forces smashed westward toward Bryansk from captured Orel and drove forward into the Ukraine from occupied Belgorod.

The dual victory which turned a German summer offensive begun just a month ago into a rout of Hitler's forces was announced in a special communique and prompted Joseph Stalin, Marshal and Premier, to issue an order of the day commending his troops for dispelling the German assertion that the Russians were unable to wage a summer offensive.

Vowing "death to the German invaders," Stalin thanked his armies for liberating Orel and Belgorod and marked the occasion at midnight by having 12 artillery salvoes fired from 120 guns at Moscow.

HULL PLEASED BY SWEDEN'S ACTIONS

Gratification of U. S. Over Barring Of Movement Of Nazi Troops Expressed

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today expressed the gratification of the American government over Sweden's action in refusing Germany further transit rights for German troops and war materials moving to and from Germany and Norway.

Hull said that the fact that Sweden, a neutral country wholly surrounded by German-dominated countries, is able to take such action at this time is a matter of great significance.

The Swedish government yesterday informed Germany that she was cancelling the right of military transit through Sweden effective August 15 for the movement of military materials and August 20 for the movement of German troops.

The agreement between Sweden and Germany had been in effect since a short while after Germany invaded Denmark and Norway in the spring of 1940. Sweden was used as the land avenue for movement of German garrisons from Germany to the entire northern part of Norway. Without this avenue of travel, Germany will be forced to use a large proportion of its available shipping to maintain its large garrisons there.

The action was particularly significant in view of the fact that the only land means of reaching key German garrisons at Narvik and Trondheim in Northern Norway is by rail and road across Norway into Sweden. The rail line from Narvik to Sweden was used for movement of high grade iron ores.

Discusses Effect Of Big Allied Victories

(Editor's Note: The three great United Nations victories of Aug. 5 are discussed in following article by Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author of "Mechanized Might".)

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG
(Written Especially For International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Three outstanding victories have been attained by the United Nations in one day, three victories which signalize a black, black day for Corporal Hitler and the puppet Hirohito.

The successes referred to were won at the cost of bitter, bloody fighting. The battle for Catania has continued for weeks. The victory at Orel and Belgorod involved weeks. The defeat of the Japanese at Munda took 35 days to cover actually four miles. Everyone should realize that the Axis delivered a desperate all-out defense at eacn place.

See Collapse In Sicily

Discussing each one in turn the victory at Catania, which was the left anchor of the Axis line, will probably signalize immediately, or within a comparatively short time, a collapse of Axis resistance on the island of Sicily. But it must be remembered that the Nazi units in the northeastern corner of this island have as of this date apparently obeyed the German order to fight to the death, much better

Pacific Outlook Much Enhanced

Capture Of Munda Is Important Step In War Against Japs

RABAUL BASE IS GREATLY MENACED

By J. C. OESTREICHER
(International News Service Foreign Editor)

One of the major objectives in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's calendar of Pacific reconquest was achieved today with Allied capture of the Munda air base on New Georgia Island in the Solomons.

After 37 days and nights of bitter struggle, American and Australian jungle fighters put an end to all organized Japanese resistance at Munda and won for the United Nations an airfield only 450 miles from Rabaul, key pivot of all enemy offensive and defensive operations in the southwest Pacific.

The great victory at Munda, climaxing a three-pronged offensive launched by Gen. MacArthur on June 30, took its place in an ever-spreading panorama of United Nation's triumphs in all theatres of war. It followed by a few hours Russian recapture of Orel and Belgorod and British seizure of Catania in Sicily and served as ample proof that the United Nations, nearing the fourth year of war, can now maintain successful offensives in global conflict.

Pacific Outlook

The achievements of Gen. MacArthur since the end of June have been tremendous, and the Allies now are fast reaching a position to compel the Japanese in ensuing

Grumblers Are Strongly Hit By Speaker Rayburn

Those Who Sacrifice Little Are Sabotaging War Effort On Home Front

(International News Service)

COMMERCE, Tex., Aug. 6.—Speaker Sam Rayburn (D) Tex. today charged that "grumlins" who sacrifice little or nothing are sabotaging the war effort on the home front.

"We have been hitting the enemy hard everywhere on the battle front but what of this other battle line—this noisy squabble ridden front at home where we are told there has been too much bickering, criticism and recrimination," said Rayburn.

"Don't mistake me. Criticism is one thing. Grumblings is another Just as the men who fly our planes into battle have to cope with the sabotage of these little fellows they call gremlins, so we working behind the lines have our own breed—our own saboteurs of the spirit—the grumlins."

Rayburn described a grumlin as the fellow who drinks his morning orange juice, has his cereal, two eggs, toast and coffee, but feels sorry for himself and fusses at his wife because she has used up all the red rationing stamps and can't feed him any bacon.

The speaker defended President Roosevelt as a man who "went to the people" to find out what to do just as congress is doing during the recess. He conceded the opa has made mistakes, but contended they were natural ones.

"A commodity that is free has a price of zero," Rayburn declared in speaking of those who criticize the administration without cause, and predicted that America will win the war through the unquenchable spirit of her people.

Prior to his talk, Rayburn was awarded an honorary degree by East Texas State Teachers College.

Tells Of Final Munda Attack

U. S. FLIERS SOON TO USE MUNDA BASE

By PAT ROBINSON
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

GUADALCANAL, Aug. 4.—(Delayed)—We probably bombed Munda for the last time today because for all practical purposes New Georgia is ours.

We entered the Munda airstrip, from which we undoubtedly soon will operate our own planes in the fight against the Japanese.

More than 100 fighters and bombers had a field day, Kittyhawks meeting and shooting down eight Zeros over Rendova, none escaping.

Marine Corsair pilots destroyed at least five Jap float planes on Shortland-Faisi waters, probably destroyed four others and shot down two others and sank three barges loaded with Japs.

Avengers, Dauntlesses and Mitchells bombed the area east of the Munda strip, turning the Jap rout into a miniature Dunkirk.

I rode in an Avenger with Marine Lieutenant Dick Lippard of Buffalo. There was no anti-aircraft today, so the planes took plenty of time swooping low to drop huge bombs, then strafing.

The target area was brilliant in the early morning sunlight and I could see sharp flashes and smoke clouds as the bombs landed and knew the Japs were screaming and dying below.

Lippard dived his Avenger at 6,000 feet, swooped, released a bomb and pulled out of the dive and then lazily circled the area to let me see.

Passing over the airstrip I saw Jap planes destroyed in previous raids, large craters around the runway and a single jeep—the most American symbol abroad—speeding down the runway, proof that our boys were there.

Wounded troops during recent days told me they couldn't have advanced much without the terrific strafing and bombing which softened the Japs.

More than 4,000,000 pounds of bombs have been dropped in the Munda area since the drive to wrest New Georgia from the Japs began June 30, and soon we will be operating planes there.

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Aug. 6—Using flame-throwers and tanks in a final assault, American troops today literally burned the Japanese out of concrete and earthquake positions to capture the key airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island in the Solomons.

By LEE VAN ATTA
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, In Australia, Aug. 6.—After 37 days and nights of bitter struggle, the United Nations won an air base within fighter plane striking distance of Rabaul today when the key Japanese airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island was overwhelmed and all organized enemy resistance ceased.

An official communique issued by Gen. Douglas MacArthur told briefly of the great victory that climaxed a great offensive launched on June 30 which already has cost the Japanese heavily in ships and planes as well as in previously-occupied territory.

The communique said:

"Munda is now in our hands and all organized resistance has ceased.

"Action is now limited to the destruction of isolated enemy groups.

"Sixteen hundred and 71 enemy dead already have been collected."

Swedish People Welcome Action Halting Germans

(International News Service)

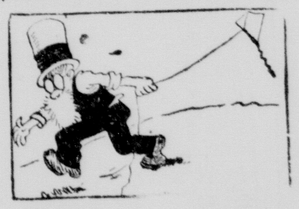

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6. — "The whole Swedish people welcomes with great satisfaction the government's declaration that transit of German troops to and from Norway via Sweden has been stopped," the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said editorially today.

"This decision has been awaited for months, weeks and at last for days.

"This aid to oppressors of brother peoples was painful to the Swedish people. German occupation of Norway has not been what Sweden thought it would be in 1940. Instead of legal occupation, there has been terror from a traitor government supported by German troops. The situation in Norway became unendurable and Sweden's position intolerable.

"Swedish soldiers now will be spared the sight of German military trains rolling through the country, which until now has caused great gloom among them."

French Authority To Be Recognized

U. S. Will Give Recognition To French Committee Of Liberation

SUCH IS OPINION IN WASHINGTON

By ROBERT G. NIXON
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The United States will recognize the French committee of liberation in North Africa, but formal diplomatic recognition of a permanent French government must await the liberation of France and the re-establishment of a French government by popular vote.

This was the opinion expressed by authoritative Washington quarters today as the American and British governments continued discussion of the status of the French committee. The discussions have been under way for nearly two months.

To Act Jointly

The two governments will act jointly when agreement is reached on all points. Such action is expected soon.

Washington and London, it was learned, are working on a "formula" to guide their future relationship with the French national committee.

This formula would embrace such matters as lend-lease aid both on the matter of helping feed and clothe North Africa as well as completing the equipping of the French colonial army with modern combat weapons, of financial aid, and of many complex problems which conceivably will arise when the Allies strike to drive the German armies out of France.

The question of extending formal diplomatic recognition to a French government, International News Service is able to disclose on authority, probably will not arise until the end of the war.

Await Liberation

Both Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles DeGaulle have put themselves on record as declaring that a formal new French government will not be established until such time as France is freed from the Germans and popular elections can again be held.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are equally insistent upon this.

Under the French constitution popular elections are discontinued during a national emergency until peace is restored, so that even when the Allies invade France a provisional government will have to function until such time as normal elections can be held.

This would mean that the present French committee of liberation, with possible later changes in membership, might function in France in the wake of Allied invasion forces.

The exigencies of the situation might, however, require establishment of a military government for a considerable time to come after any Allied invasion of continental France.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 6.—Secretary of Banking William C. Freeman today announced the resignation of Edward W. Wentworth, of Pittsburgh, as an advanced bank examiner at $3600 a year.

than did their comrades in Tunisia.

The entire remaining Axis-held triangle of Sicily is extremely mountainous and therefore most advantageous for defense against the allied attack. Nevertheless, in retiring northward the Nazi troops at Catania must follow the coastal road. That coastal road and the straits of Messina are continuously under the range of the guns of the United Nations naval fleets, and under bombardment of allied air forces.

To Defend Part of Italy

But in viewing the Italian situation, it must be remembered that Axis forces without doubt are preparing to defend at least portions of mainland Italy. It may be on the river Po. It might take place in the southern fringe of the Alps mountains. Or, a desperate effort may be made in the toe of the boot of Italy where reports have constantly placed a Nazi panzer division.

Italy will collapse. Yugoslavia, Albania and Greece will join the camp of the United Nations, but before these events take place there may be desperate, long, bloody fighting.

The second victory, the capture of Orel and Belgorod is a knockout blow to the morale of Hitler and his German general staff. Their recently launched offensive in Russia was stopped in its tracks, and now their troops have been hurled out of Orel, and Belgorod, a major base which they have held for two years.

Trying Get-Away

The Axis have an 18-mile wide escape corridor. They will frantically try to make their get-away. Stalin will throw everything he has to stop it.

The third great victory was accomplished by General MacArthur's troops at Munda. That success will almost of a certainty follow the pattern which was etched when the marines captured Henderson field on Guadalcanal. In other words, we may consider that New Georgia island is now ours. But, like Guadalcanal and Attu, there is still much desperate, "mopping up" to be accomplished.

The victory at Munda should make every person in the democracies, particularly in the United States, realize that the armed forces of the empire of the Rising Sun are a much more desperate, fanatic and dangerous enemy than Germany ever was.

RECORD NUMBER OF OIL TANKERS MADE IN PAST 7 MONTHS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Maritime Commission announced today that American shipyards delivered approximately 40 per cent more oil tankers during the first seven months of this year than during the entire year of 1942.

Through July of this year, the commission said, a total of 88 tankers aggregating 1,130,000 deadweight tons were delivered, compared to 62 tankers totaling 998,200 deadweight tons produced in 1942.

Officials attributed the increase to standardization of designs, mass production and prefabrication methods and all-out effort by both workers and management in the nation's shipyards. Production schedules call for the delivery of 511 additional tankers during the next 17 months.

ALLID BOMBING PLANES SMASH AT PORT OF MESSINA

heavy night attack, heavy bombers and fighters blasted road and railway communications in Messina.

Medium bombers attacked road communications at Francaville while light bombers attacked similar targets at Adrano. Light bombers carried out numerous attacks on Axis troop concentrations and road junctions.

One sweep was made over the island of Sardinia where electrical installations were blasted.

Intruder aircraft meanwhile maintained assaults over southern Italy All the reported sweeps cost the Allies eight planes.

Britain's Eighth Army sent the Germans streaming up the east coast of Sicily from Catania while the American Seventh Army smashed eastward along the north coast.

Push Defense Back

The powerful thrusts by the Allied armies swung back both ends of the Axis Etna defense line and placed the British and Americans converging on Messina, at the northeast tip of the island opposite the Italian mainland, within approximately 50 miles of their objective.

The principal German positions on each side of the Etna line crumbled as the all-out assault to conclude the Sicilian campaign gained momentum and the Nazi legions fell back toward new defense positions along the northern slopes of Mount Etna.

As the Allied armies slashed forward to permit the enemy no respite reports reaching headquarters indicated that the Axis had begun to evacuate troops from the gravely threatened Messina bridgehead constantly being narrowed by the progress of American, British and Canadian troops and cut to pieces by aerial bombardment and intensive shelling from United States and British warships off shore.

Nazis Move Out Hurriedly

The British Eighth Army which took Catania, major east coast port, and Paterno, 11 miles to the west yesterday, overran their objectives with little opposition as units of the Nazi Hermann Goering Division moved out hurriedly in fear of being cut off by an Allied swing around the north of Mount Etna.

The Americans in the north however, were locked in gruelling combat with the Germans in the vicinity of Troina as the Axis battled furiously to hold off Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops at least long enough for the Germans who were in the Catania area to move up to the region of Taormina, approximately 30 miles south of Messina, less than two miles across the Strait of Messina from the toe of the Italian boot.

The Axis appeared bent on removing its forces as soon as possible to evacuation points in the Messina region while the Allies struck repeatedly in a gigantic effort to thwart the get away by constantly hammering communications points from the air and sea.

It was believed the Nazi high command hoped to withdraw crack German units under cover of night aboard small boats now held in Sicilian bays while rearguard units fight a delaying action. Informed quarters believe that the enemy has a fair chance of getting an appreciable number of troops away because of the proximity to the Italian mainland.

The reason that ice floats on water is because its specific gravity is less than that of water.

BLGOROD-OREL VICTORIES SPUR SOVIET ADVANCE

fully concluded the campaign against Orel surged westward in the direction of the rail city of Karachev, on the Orel-Bryansk line in a drive directed at Bryansk which with Orel formed the fusion point of the central and southern fronts.

Three Russian rifle divisions which were the first to enter Orel already were considerably west of the city in hot pursuit of the fleeing German troops.

Northwest of the city the Soviet forces fought gruelling battles against counter-attacking Nazis who sought to provide escape for the main German garrison.

Belgorod Victory Surprise

Collapse of Orel had been expected following a communique 24 hours before revealing that Russian troops had broken into the city but the capitulation of Belgorod, 165 miles to the south, came as a surprise.

Belgorod, along with Orel, was one of the key strongholds in the Nazi line from which Hitler had hoped to resume an eastward drive into the Volga industrial area and the oil rich Caucasus.

With Belgorod now securely in their hands after the triumph by Soviet forces which struck from the Voronezh area, Red army units were expected to launch their next assault in this area on Kharkov, industrial capital of the Ukraine.

Nazi Front Precarious

So grave has become the threat to the Nazi southern front fortifications that it is expected the Germans shortly may be forced to retire westward to the Dnieper river defenses in the vicinity of Kiev.

Still further south, in the Donets river basin southwest of Voroshilovgrad, local fighting between the Russians and Nazis continued and it was believed possible that a new offensive might be launched from this sector at any time.

The high command reported that in repelling Nazi counter-attacks northwest of Orel another 1,000 Germans were killed and 16 tanks destroyed. More than 800 Nazis were slain on other sectors.

Belgorod was taken only after stubborn fighting in which at least 3,000 Germans were slain. Considerable war material was seized.

The Germans for a time bitterly contested the Soviet advance in furious counter-attacks but the Russians cut the Nazi communication line and broke the resistance after inflicting heavy losses.

A recapitulation of the fighting on other fronts Wednesday showed that 98 German tanks were destroyed and 168 planes shot down.

U. S. BOMBERS HAMMER NAZI ESCAPE ROUTE

the Sicilian straits as the heaviest seen outside the Ruhr valley as the Germans made ready to move the bulk of their crack combat troops out of Sicily at the proper moment.)

Terrific Aerial Assault

A heavy shuttling of small craft and barges was reported underway in the Sicilian straits as the Nazis apparently began to press into service all vessels able to transport equipment back to the mainland.

Enemy transport columns attempt to fall back on Messina were being hammered by a terrific aerial onslaught while British warships and smaller craft were summoned to cut off the German retreat by bombarding the coastal road east of Mount Etna.

For the first time in a week today's communique failed to mention any enemy planes destroyed.

A number of hits were scored by U. S. Mitchells and escorting Warhawks in an attack on switching yards and transformers at Guspini, Sardinia. No fighters were encountered there.

Mitchells twice attacked Francaville, east of Randazzo. South African airmen in A-20s and Bostons hit the road junction at Adrano.

Wellingtons in patrols of beaches in the Messina area carried out successive waves of assaults in darkness and daylight.

Headquarters disclosed that Second Lieuts. Anthony Eans of (Exchange street) Akron, O., and Harold Knott of (Oregon street) Bakersfield, Cal., each destroyed two Messerschmitt 109s on Aug. 4 over Catanzaro.

months to curl up their tentacles behind the steel wall of garrisons surrounding their immediate home islands.

Summarized briefly, this is the Pacific outlook as of today:

1—Australia has been relieved entirely of the danger of invasion, and Allied strength in men, ships and planes is mounting daily.

2—All of the southern Solomons are safely in Allied hands, from San Cristoval through Guadalcanal and the Russell Islands to New Georgia, with Kolombangara a compartively easy target and Bougainville perhaps not worth bothering with.

3—Except for a limited area around Lae and Salamaua, the northern coast of New Guinea is firmly held. How soon Gen. MacArthur will move to clean up this region is problematical. A full-scale drive may come immediately, or he may continue to regard it as a "fly-trap" for the Japanese. So long as the enemy maintains its efforts to reinforce New Guinea, MacArthur may hold off the final thrust so he can sink supply ships and troop transports. This attritional warfare has paid heavy dividends in the Aleutians.

4—Woodlark and the Trobriand Islands are under the Allied flags and are being converted into operational bases. Meanwhile, they serve to block any southward moves by the Japanese.

5—The Allied supply line to Australia and New Zealand is safeguarded. Barring totally unforseen developments, the Japanese can never again threaten to cut this vitally important artery of warfare.

JAP RESISTANCE IN MUNDA BATTLE HAS BEEN ENDED

Georgia and all but a few miles of the Lae-Salamaua area on the New Guinea coast are now in Allied hands.

Will Be U. S. Base

Munda capped the climax of victory. For as soon as the air strip is repaired, the base can be used by fighter planes protecting huge bombers in assaults against Rabaul, pivot of all Japanese offensive and defense in the southwestern Pacific.

For the last few days, hard-fighting American troops had been pounding at Munda from close range and yesterday had engulfed perhaps half of the air strip so laboriously constructed by the Japanese in an effort to offset the offensive uses of Henderson Field on Guadalcanal.

But not until Gen. MacArthur announced late tonight that all organized resistance had ceased could it definitely be said that Munda was ours.

Wiped Out To Man

As on many previous occasions, the Japanese had to be wiped out man by man. Infantrymen sweeping down the slopes of Kokengolo and Bibolo hills which overlook the air field encountered one hidden enemy nest after the other and each had to be dealt with individually.

Concrete revetments erected by the Japanese were found filled with machine-gunners, grenade-throwers riflemen and snipers. Tank support enabled the Americans and Australians to move in strength against these emplacements, but any general frontal assault was impossible and the whole affair took time.

There never was any question of the outcome, but no one at Allied headquarters was inclined to boast the capture until it was known the Japanese had been entirely defeated and the last lone chance of a counter-attack with inevitable Allied casualties had been removed.

Few In Getaway

By surrounding the air strip which lies 450 miles southeast of Rabaul, Allied forces cut off the main Japanese lines of retreat and although some high enemy officers probably made a temporary getaway across Kula Gulf to Kolombangara Island, the vast bulk of the enemy garrison was wiped out.

The total of enemy casualties is not yet known but probably will prove to be large. The Japanese made every possible effort to hold Munda and lost many ships in various engagements trying to pour reinforcements into the base. The enemy death-toll may not reach the 40,000 level of Guadalcanal, but it will be considerable nevertheless.

Final Phase

The final phase of the 35-day battle for Munda got under way as an American column at the southern end of the field made new gains, tank-supported elements seized the eastern slopes of Kokengola hill—which overlooks the flying field—and a third column on the right flank broke through to the western shore 600 yards north of Gurasai.

Conversion of the field into an Allied airbase will put United Nations fighter planes within range of the big Jap base at Rabaul, New Britain, the desperate Jap attempt to prevent Munda from falling into Allied hands has cost the enemy 3,000 to 5,000 casualties and 16 warships.

While the Americans mopped up at Munda, light naval craft on patrol sank two Jap barges northwest of the airfield and a small coastal vessel in Blackett Strait while medium bombers attacked barges and shore installations at nearby Kolombangara and Gizo Islands.

Repulse Japs At Salamaua

In New Guinea, Allied ground troops approaching Salamaua sharply repulsed Jap counter-attacks in the Bobubi and Mount Tambu sectors and bombers raided Bogadjim and Saidor villages near Madang, bombed a bridge over the Nuru river, destroyed two enemy barges along the coast and bombed and strafed Finschhafen.

Other bombers bombed and strafed a 1,000-ton cargo vessel in the Bismarck Sea between New Guinea and New Britain, attacked an enemy Bivouac area in the Vitu Islands and started fires and explosions at Lautem on Timor Island, west of New Guinea.

(The Lautem attack was executed by Dutch airmen flying Mitchell medium bombers. The raid resulted in one "very large" fire and several smaller blazes and caused numerous explosions among munitions dumps.)

AUTO IS BURNED IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

City firemen were called to the rear of 1506 South Jefferson street by an alarm from box 57 at 5:30 o'clock this morning, where an automobile and garage were found ablaze. Damage to the car, which was virtually a total one, amounted to $275, Fire Chief James E. Thomas states. Damage to the garage was about $50.

At 3:15 p. m. Thursday an alarm was sounded from box 711, at the Aluminum Company of America plant, a test being made from the box there.

GARDEN CLUB HAS TALKS ON 'GLADS'

Mrs. W. R. Allen of Englewood avenue entertained the Lawrence County Garden club Thursday at a luncheon-picnic and regular meeting amid a setting of trees and lovely flowers. The picnic table was centered with an artistic arrangement of colorful leaves and wild blooms.

The gladiolus was the subject of study. Mrs. L. F. Royston and Mrs. G. R. Crawford gave the preparation of the soil and the culture of gladioli. Mrs. Norman Patton, a guest, gave a very informative description of her methods of growing the gladiolus. Mrs. Patton had large bouquets of beautiful "glads" on exhibit and interested her listeners with the names and characteristics of these and of many others through a wide range of colors.

Guests of the afternoon were Mrs. Frank Riddle of Franklin, Mrs. T. F. Stryker, Mrs. Norman Patton and Mrs. Homer Allen of this city.

The picnic committee was Mrs. J. C. Gilfillan, Mrs. R. G. Campbell and the hostess.

The club will meet Sept. 2 with Mrs. R. G. Campbell to study "The Newer Annuals".

Miss Martha Davis Honored

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Knobloch entertained at a spaghetti dinner in their home on Chestnut street Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Martha Davis of West North street who will leave August 11 for service in the WAVES. About twenty guests were present. Mrs. Anna Nemeth assisted Mrs. Knobloch in serving dinner.

PHILATHEA SOCIETY HAS AUGUST MEETING

Philathea society members met in the parlors of the Central Presbyterian church Thursday evening with Miss Blanche Bright as leader. She also conducted the devotional period.

Mrs. George W. Conway very ably discussed "Wendell Willkie's Message to the General Assembly".

Mrs. Mont Alley gave "Foreign Missions", stressing the financial situation of mission boards.

A social period ensued, with Mrs. William Anderson and her committee of aides, Mrs. Charles Coates, Mrs. Sara Fisher and Mrs. J. L. Maxwell, in charge.

ROUND-UP CLUB PLANNING OUTING

Round-Up club members held their regular meeting Thursday evening in the South Mill street club rooms, with Mrs. Paul Lombardo in charge.

Plans were made for a corn roast on Thursday, August 19, with Mrs. Ruben Pratt as chairman. Assisting will be Mrs. Anthony J. Capezio, Mrs. Nick Tuscano, Mrs. Charles Szarro, and Mrs. Paul Lombardo.

Card playing was the pastime, and the club token was captured by Mrs. A. J. Capezio, who also received a big sister gift honoring her birthday.

Serving the delicious lunch later were: Mrs. Paul Lombardo, Mrs. Nick Tuscano, Mrs. William Russo, Mrs. Frank Copple, Mrs. John George, and Mrs. Charles Tedescko.

On Monday, August 9, the group will make surgical dressings for the Red Cross in the Wallace building.

SUE HARVARD SOLOIST FOR GARDEN MUSICALE

Sue Harvard, known in private life as Mrs. Herbert Newton Armstrong, accompanied by Mrs. Richard K. Allen, will give a group of songs at the Garden Musicale Tea being sponsored by Lawrence chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in the gardens of Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson, East Moody avenue, on Thursday afternoon, August 12.

Miss Harvard's reputation as a soprano is known to almost every Lawrence county resident. She was a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company and has sung in nearly every large city in the United States.

She and her husband have made their home in New Castle in recent years and our city is fortunate to claim them as its own. Miss Harvard is contributing her time and talent to war activities and for this reason will sing for the benefit of the Red Cross blood plasma work. She has selected a program which will delight all who attend.

When, several months ago, she gave a sacred concert at the First Christian church, the audience was so large that it taxed the seating capacity of the auditorium and Sunday school rooms. A similarly large and enthusiastic attendance is anticipated for her appearance next Thursday and as Mrs. Johnson's gardens are extensive those in charge of the event are certain that all who attend will be accommodated.

Like Miss Harvard, Mrs. Allen is contributing her services to war activities. She is organist of the First Christian church, accompanist for the Shubert Sextette, and has accompanied Miss Harvard on former occasions.

In addition to the musical program, the entire entertainment is being given for the benefit of the National Red Cross blood plasma work, which is the main project for 1943 of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and this particular afternoon is being sponsored by Lawrence chapter.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

This Liver Loaf is Tasty and Nutritious

There is no surer sign of a good cook than a rich, juicy, well-seasoned meat loaf. And here is a liver loaf recipe from Armour's kitchen that has the secret of success right in it.

Tid-bits of Armour's Star Bacon, together with the eggs and seasonings, make a grand flavor combination with liver. It's a very nutritious meal, too—for point-thrifty liver is the richest of all meats in vitamins, has high protein and mineral value. This loaf will feed 6 or 7 people heartily at about 1 red point per serving.

Place 1½ lbs. of pork, lamb or beef liver in hot water for 10 minutes. Then grind it with 4 slices of Armour's Star Bacon and 1½ cups chopped onion. Add 2 Cloverbloom eggs, 2½ cups soft bread crumbs, ¼ cup chopped parsley, 2 tsps. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper. Mix well and pack firmly into a loaf pan. Bake 1 hour at 350° F. Serve with creamed potatoes. This loaf is also good sliced cold.

NELSON'S PLEA

Reports from Washington have warned the nation that production was lagging seriously with the intimation that an attitude of public complacency was primarily responsible. The impression given was that "lagging" meant decreased volume.

Chairman Nelson of the War Production Board has come out with a flat declaration that this is not the case. Production is not falling off but taken as a whole it has not increased as fast as it should to meet the quotas established for the military services.

In addition to the retarding influence of constant changes in the designing of equipment due to experiences, Mr. Nelson notes that some workers have tended to relax; that absenteeism and labor turnover in some important plants are higher than they should be. He also recognizes that people tire after "a long, hard, unbroken period of work" and that the weather has been hot.

This commonsense analysis, expressed with tolerant understanding, strengthens immeasurably Mr. Nelson's admonition that despite all handicaps and inconveniences it is time that every one on the home front exert himself to the utmost. He calls on each American to realize "the bigger his own personal war effort now, the safer will be some American fighting man a few months hence." If Americans have let down a bit here and there, this is the sort of plea that should put them back on their mettle.

SO HITLER'S FEELING DEPRESSED?

German news printed by Swedish newspapers isn't distinguished by reliability; but we certainly hope that story about Hitler's failing health isn't too much exaggerated.

According to the account, Henrich Himmler, hatchetman in charge of the Gestapo, asked doctors to give a "true report" of Hitler's physical condition. They are supposed to have found it "very bad," revealing that "the Fuehrer often appears apathetic and depressed."

We wouldn't be surprised if he's depressed. But if he just bears up a little longer he'll get a wallop that'll make all his other worries seem trivial—and echo down the ages as long as history endures.

GREAT SEAPORT GONE

The immensity of modern air power shows itself in such terrific assaults as British and American bombers and Flying Fortresses have been delivering against Hamburg. The great seaport has now been battered to destruction. There will soon be so little left of it that, if it is ever rebuilt, the builders will have to remove the ruins and start all over again.

And that was just one incident in a three-dimensional war, which proceeds so tremendously now that almost every week brings some new weapon or process of destruction. It begins to look as if Germany, which has felt itself secure from the destructive wars it waged against civilization, is at last coming to such retribution as has never been visited upon a warring nation in modern times.

And it seems right that this retribution should proceed "from strength to strength." Only so can the world be cleansed of crime and made safe for peaceful civilization.

MORE TRACTORS FOR 1944

Although lack of manpower has been the primary difficulty in the food production program, the situation would have been more easily dealt with had there not been also a lack of new farm machinery. This flaw will be remedied next year, if tentative schedules agreed upon by the War Production Board and the War Food Administration are adopted.

It seems that WPB authorized for 1943 a quota of 40 per cent of the 1940 farm machinery production. Small as that was, the program got under way so late that only half of the allotment ever reached the fields. For 1944 the WPB has sanctioned farm machinery production aggregating 80 per cent of the 1940 base, and has promised in addition that the steel and other necessary materials will be available in time to permit manufacture of the entire quota.

If this means that three or four times as much new machinery will be available to farmers next year as was the case this year, some compensation for lack of manpower will be provided. Moreover, the 1940 production figure used as a base is the largest in the country's history. Even the curtailed production for 1943 permitted the manufacture and sale of nearly 69,000 tractors. Tripling this number should bring a little relief to overworked farmers.

Although no definite reason is advanced for the big jump in steel priorities granted farm machinery manufacture by the WPB, one or two factors can be suggested as influential. The most obvious is the belated recognition not only of the importance of agriculture in the war, but also the indispensability of the tools which speed up sowing and reaping.

It is also possible that there has been improvement in the steel picture. Huge quantities of damaged equipment taken from the Germans and Italians are being shipped to the United States as scrap. If it had not been for the coal strike, steel production would present an even more favorable picture.

Combining these facts with a more generous policy of deferments for necessary farm labor, farmers may look forward to next year with considerable confidence of larger yields. All the food that it is possible to produce will be needed, too, whether or not the war ends before another harvest, with plans being made by the administration to feed the world in the days following the end of hostilities.

Mussolini is now waiting for Hitler, Hirohito and Quisling so they can make up a rubber of bridge.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

AID CHILD'S READING PLEASURE

For the child under fourteen, in the average urban home, a quiet period of a few hours early in the afternoon is very desirable, the more so if there are several children. This quiet period enables the mother to have much-needed rest.

Let the playmates of the neighborhood know of this regular quiet period so they will not come around then. For every one of the family a nap at this time would be excellent. Anyway, it should be a period of calm and relaxation, with quiet voices, no radio except for very soft music, perhaps.

The child under six should be required to nap or lie down quietly for at least an hour. The older children might engage in quiet constructive play or at such games as Chinese checkers or regular checkers.

Daily Reading Period

About the finest program for the school age child then is to read from a good book. I wish reading a few hours a day during summer would be a habit of school-age children. Let no parent be content without bringing this about.

Some parents may do it by buying good books suitable to the child's reading interest and ability, letting him help to choose them, or by bringing books home from the public library. The compaionable parent often goes to the library with her child to help him find the kind of books which will appeal to him. From his parents, a child can catch enthusiasm for good books.

This enthusiasm begins best when the parent reads to the child daily from the time he is less than two years old. It is excellent for both reader and listener when the older child reads daily to the child under six or seven.

Mother Should Read To Child

Even children of school age like to be read to. The skillful mother can stimulate in the child reading for pleasure by reading a chapter or two from a book that fascinates him. Then he easily might have the urge to go on reading it alone. Often the child and parent should read to each other, even at high school level.

How fine it is when children and parents can talk about a book they have read, during a blackout drill! Some while ago, Mrs. Myers and I were in a family on such an occasion. The children of 9 and 11 told of some books they had read and every person present told the funniest story he had heard.

I wish parents would by their appreciative listening, encourage children to tell jokes and propound riddles and the like, even the moron stories so popular with youngsters now. The dinner hour is a good time for this. Whatever the time we parents need to learn to appreciate the child's effort at humor and to listen courteously as he talks and contributes to the family conversation.

THE DRUGGIST'S WIFE

I'd say it means a lonely life
To be the corner druggist's wife,
Condemned through all the years before
To make a home above the store.
On holidays to hear him say:
"My dear, the clerk is off today!
If I should order him to work,
I'd have to seek another clerk,
And clerks today of any kind
I'm sure you know are hard to find."

Time was, at very early age,
I took a druggist's trivial wage
And washed the glasses and the spoons,
The bottles and the brass spittoons.
I folded all the morning through
The Seidlitz powders, white and blue.

From eight a. m. to ten at night
I heard the druggist's clerk recite
The cares, the troubles and the woes
Which endlessly the druggist knows.

Yet though they burn the midnight oil
And seven days a week must toil,
Though pharmacists are never known
To have a moment for their own,
And though their trade they must pursue
On holidays and Sundays, too,
When druggists would a-wooing go,
The women never answer "No."
Although it means a lonely life,
The druggist always finds a wife.

The woman nodded, and asked, "What time ye gonna dynamite the bridge?"

"Tomorrow morning at eight o'clock."

The woman puffed in silence for a moment, then asked, "Can't ye make it six o'clock? Then I won't have ter set the alarm clock for my husband."

WHEN HUSBAND NEGLECTS RESPONSIBILITY

A recent letter from a mother of four children complaining of her husband's neglect of his family responsibilities — his shifting of all of the care to her weary shoulders brings to mind the outstanding cry of wives echoing through my reader correspondence during my numerous years as a columnist. Here is the latest, similar in tone to the many others from all sections of the globe:

"My husband is a good provider. We always have sufficient money for food and clothing; but I never have a penny that I can call my own . . . am never permitted the wherewithal to go off on my own for a few hours and spend a dollar or two. Every Friday and Saturday nights, however, he goes out with 'the boys' and the sky is the limit. Now, my husband has a brilliant idea. He wants to take our earnings and buy a farm where the children and I shall go and where he will visit on week-ends only. This is out latest bone of contention. Why does a man think it is his wife's job to slave in the kitchen and in the nursery while he merely provides. To me the companionship and love of a man mean more than his indifferent providing."

Answer: While a husband, as well as his wife, must have diversion after a hard day's work, he is certainly selfish who wantonly goes off during most of his free hours and leaves her to face all of the family responsibilities and monotonies. Every family must have the guidance and leadership of a father as well as a mother. Mother needs diversion as much as father and probably more so. Every man who can afford to do so, should have a responsible paid attendant to care for the little ones while he takes his wife out at least one night a week. Many high school girls charge only 25 cents an hour to watch over neighbors' children during parents' brief visits to the movies or neighbors' homes.

Marriage is a 50-50 proposition and when it becomes a 75-25 or 90-10 proposition, there is grave danger of its dissolution. The faithful, loving care of a good woman will do much to keep the family ties together; but she must have the love, respect and moral support of a good provider who is also a good helpmate and constant companion. In these times such separations as your husband suggests sow the seeds for divorce and—too often—greater tragedies.

A man went home one evening while it was raining. As he started into the house, he saw a kitten on the porch. The kitten had been out in the rain, was very wet and when the man opened the door, it darted into the house. The man chased the kitten, caught it, and threw it out.

A little later the children came home from school and the kitten got in again. They all had a grand chase and finally caught it and put it out again.

After a while the newspaper came. The children heard it hit the front doorstep and when they went out to get the paper the kitten got in for the third time.

While the children were chasing the kitten and putting it out once more, the man was down in the basement looking around. It was nice and warm down there and he saw a box standing over in one corner. He thought to himself: "We probably need a cat. I'll just get some old rags and put them in the box and the next time the kitten gets in, I'll bring it down in the basement and give it a home."

They waited around and the kitten didn't return. After dinner the man walked around the yard looking for it, but it didn't show up. Now, if that kitten had made just one more try, it would have won a home for life!

Schools Face Even More Wartime Changes
Emphasis To Be Placed On Army Training
More Mathematics And Science Included

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—To ease the high school lad's transition from classroom to battlefront, certain far-sighted educators seek new aid to groom youths, approaching draft age, with pre-induction instruction that will prepare them mentally and physically for service in the armed forces. If the plan works, the Army will save six months in the training time of raw recruits.

To make it work in a hurry, Senator Carl Hayden, of Arizona, is introducing a bill in the senate authorizing $8,000,000 to put the high schools of America on a war-time basis.

The legislation is aimed at providing pre-induction aids to future soldiers:

1—More and better instruction in mathematics, science and pre-flight aeronautics.

2—Physical examinations to help the student select his preference in the various branches of the armed services. (No need to take pre-flight aeronautics if the student knows his eyes are not correctable to a 20-20 vision. The many boys who hope to be pilots can find out early if they qualify. If not, they might better take courses to prepare for the ground forces.)

3—Appointment of teacher-trainers to give other teachers refresher courses. (To include suggestions for teaching the war-time approach to classroom subjects.)

4—Emphasis on special training for the 610 specialized jobs in the Army. (Men for such jobs were easy to get in the first year of the war, but mechanics, carpenters, linesmen and radio operators are now much in demand.)

Some fear that the bill, which was favorably approved by the senate committee on education and labor, may arouse that old bugaboo argument used against all educational bills involving federal funds . . . "regimentation of our educational system by congress." But the bill follows the accepted pattern for educational legislation . . . placing the allocation of funds under state control.

The proposed legislation will help not only the 80 per cent of the high school boys who, it is estimated, will go into the armed forces, but also all high school students, boys and girls, needed acutely for other non-combative tasks.

Those screened out will be given specialized training for a wartime civilian job in a factory, in the government, on the farm.

Right after Pearl Harbor, the military authorities were not concerned over what was taught in the high schools of the country. But with the coming of the 18-year-old draft, they immediately realized the service that the school system could render the soldiers of the near future.

Sixty educators formed a U. S. Wartime Commission and agreed to the drafting of high schools in an organized way. Requests from the war and navy departments were answered in the creation of the High School Victory Corps, working through a policy committee headed by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Throughout all of these days of planning, the influence of one man of vision, Dr. John W. Studebaker, was a vital force. As commissioner of the U. S. Office of Education, his agency was charged with the responsibility of offering a specific pattern for procedure to the 48 states and the District of Columbia. Naturally, he could make no demands of the states because he doesn't have that kind of authority. So first he inspired them. Then he offered a specific program, but one elastic enough to encourage local ingenuity.

Along with other realistic educators, Dr. Studebaker recognized that the emphasis on the physical must overshadow the academic. He's fond of quoting General Sir Harold Alexander, of the British First Army, "The physical fitness of an Army is one of the most important battle-winning factors in modern war. When fighters meet, it is the men who stick it longest who win in the end."

So, today we find the high schools giving five days of physical education instead of two, competitive sports replaced by calesthenics and commando training.

Scarcely a school in the country has not made some change in its curriculum to meet wartime demands. Some 76.6 per cent have placed increased emphasis on science. Mathematics classes have almost doubled. Foreign languages are popular. Shop work, particular with metals, is encouraged.

High school students from Maine to California are encouraged to gain work experience. Even school hours have been revamped. On the west coast, students attend classes from 7 until 11 so they can work in the nearby Lockheed airplant for four hours during the afternoon.

The World and the Mud Puddles

NOT SO GOOD

The citizens of the Republic have boasted time out of mind that the United States has the greatest public school system in the world. Perhaps it has the most substantial and beautiful school buildings in the world, but the education given within the walls of those buildings is today not so good as it should be.

It seems to be the purpose of school authorities to discourage all memory systems and as a consequence, the pupils do not learn the multiplication table. I asked a Superintendent of Schools why this was.

"Oh," he said, "the children will learn that all right by the induction system. They will absorb it."

"Oh," I replied, "do they absorb it?"

"Well, I do not know, but I think they do."

As a matter of fact, they do not.

Fifty years ago they had, every Friday afternoon, rhetoricals and every pupil in our public schools was required to memorize some worthwhile bit of literature and recite it. Some youngsters did very well and some did very poorly, but they at least made an effort of memorizing.

The public schools used to teach penmanship — Spencerian penmanship. For a long time J. L. Moser taught penmanship in the public schools of New Castle and he taught very well. There are a great many New Castle people living today who learned to write very well because of this. But just take up any letter written by a young man or young woman today and try to read it and see just how poorly the letters are written.

The old Readers were library books that contained extracts from the writings of the best English poets, essayists and historians and frequently on Friday afternoons, here and there, there were passages recited, memorized from these same Readers. In other words, fifty years ago—back in the horse-and-buggy days, they did teach children in the public schools of this country, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic, and the men and women who attended the schools made the United States a worthwhile place in which to live. Cracked brain philosophy and political economy were not taught. The inexorable law of supply and demand was aught. The sacredness of the Constitution of the United States was thoroughly instilled into the young minds of the pupils. Ambition was encouraged and the youngsters were thoroughly impressed with the fact that whatever they sowed, they certainly

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

The American people are more than fifty per cent illiterate in effective ability to understand adult reading matter, says William S. Gray, professor of education at the University of Chicago.

"Millions of adults today have attended school for only a limited period of time and therefore did not have an opportunity to learn to read well" claims this learned man.

Bunk, professor.

I have been a newspaperman for quite a few years and think I know as much about people's ability to read and to understand what they read as you do.

The trouble is that many of you professors don't know how to read people and to understand them.

The trouble is that you professors write stuff that nobody can understand without a dictionary or an encyclopedia.

You don't find people in books. You don't get to know them by reading about them or by applying slide rules, test tubes and mathematical formulae to them.

People, my dear professor, are in the streets, in offices and factories, in the mountains and on the farms.

To know them you must talk to them, you must mix with them, you must be one of them.

It isn't that they haven't read enough. You have read too much.

I have before me a piece of writing by a well known college professor. His university sent it to me so that I may say something about it. I shall.

He calls it "Cohesion." Six pages of incoherence. Six pages of hogwash about what's wrong with the world, about our unpreparedness, our bad economical management, the disintegration of our country.

Long words, every other line underscored for emphasis, a deadly tirade smacking of indigestion.

And the remedy? Just four lines in the last paragraph—We must work for national unity, temper the conflict between the Executive and Congress, insist that each perform its appointed function, work together for the common good.

How? That seems too vulgar for a professor to worry about.

Words, theories, meanderings in to far-away realms. Nothing practical, nothing down to earth.

No, professor, it isn't that we haven't studied enough—you have studied too much.

Babson Appeals For Small Communities

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Copyright, 1943, Publishers Financial Bureau, Inc.)

BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 6.—The end of Mussolini's twenty-one year rule over Italy came so suddenly that its significance has yet to be appreciated. It marks, however, a definite end of an era of confusion. The sands of all dictators are now running out. Whether governments of Fascists, Nazis, Revolutionists, Socialists or New Dealers, or city dictators—their ends are in sight. We shall return to religion and democracy. We also face a return to "relief"—not to New Deal relief but to relief coming from one more demonstration that what is fundamentally right will prevail. We, however, do face new economic problems that will arise in connection with postwar events.

BABSON

The Basis of Recovery

To date, the rise in the cost of living has been kept within reasonable limits. The national debt has risen to astronomical heights; but it is being adequately serviced. Money in circulation per capita is the highest in our history. Consumer goods inventories are holding up pretty well; and we should now see more, rather than less, such goods. For the time being however, there is relatively less for which the average wage worker can spend his money. Hence, Secretary Morgenthau's continued efforts to switch the bulk of war bond buying from banks to the individual—from the cities to the towns. Any high degree of inflation is likely to come after the war, rather than now.

It thus becomes essential that everything possible be done to prevent a postwar scarcity of goods and resulting uncontrollable prices. This should be the basis of our postwar recovery plan. Russia, North Africa, Latin America, Denmark, Norway and Holland may provide a good deal of food. It becomes more apparent, however, that we shall have to feed, as well as help clothe, several hundred million people outside of our own, beginning with North Africa, Sicily and Italy. For two or three years, we may be obliged to produce much more food and merchandise than ever before.

Small-Town Opportunities

Henry Ford may live to see a revival of his ideas for small factories and processing companies located in towns near raw materials and foodstuffs sources. When 30,000,000 war workers and 10,000,000 service men are demobilized, the larger cities will feel the effect of unemployment and depression the most. Plant owners and labor will fight over wage and production schedules just as they did in 1918-21. Hundreds of large city plants may be idle. It is possible for unemployment to reach new heights unless people return to their birthplaces during the postwar period.

The smaller communities hold the key to solving the problem. The total population of small towns exceeds that of our large cities. If the businessmen, bankers, editors, farmers and other leading citizens of our small cities and towns can get together and operate, by themselves or through government loans, small and efficient plants they can absorb the unemployment slack. I anticipate that 75 per cent postwar unemployment will be taken care of by existing consumer goods plants and by reconverted war plants. Taking care, however, of the remaining 25 per cent of unemployment may spell the difference between the American way of living and a more drastic planned economy.

World Markets Important

One of the biggest battles at the peace table will be over the question of tariffs, shipping and air routes. Whether we can long compete with certain other nations in the cost of manufacturing goods, in the cost of growing and processing foodstuffs, in wage rates and in shipping costs remains to be seen. Foreign trade competition will be unprecedented after the war. To gain an edge on this, we can at least, while the war is on, assure ourselves of surpluses far and beyond our own needs. Foreign demands for our goods and services will be great and we must be prepared fully to meet them. To do this may require a temporary lower standard for wages and living for all groups. This would be better than unemployment.

No other nation is so fundamentally equipped to expand as we are. Control of the postwar world markets would put us at the head of the peace table regardless of any question as to whether we, England or Russia had done the most to knock out Hitler. But we can accomplish little without the industrial development and help of 80,000,000 consumer-producers of the American rural hinterlands. In the hands of this group—rather than our large cities—lies the physical salvation of much of the world and certainly the winning or losing of the coming economic battle on our own postwar home front.

Advice To Young People

Several conclusions may be reached from the above analysis. The chief one is that those now living in towns and small cities should stay where they are and not seek the large cities. Those now in the larger cities should plan to get back to their "home towns" just as soon as the war is over. Following World War II the best opportunities for both young and old will be on good farms and in spiritually minded small communities.

BUTLER DISTRICTS WANT WET, DRY VOTE

(Special To The News)

BUTLER, Aug. 6.—In order to determine which of the 10 districts in Butler county will vote on the question of licensing sales of liquor and beer, county commissioners today are reviewing reports of checkers on petitions presented.

Every petition was checked against registration records, and some cases were found in which signers were not qualified electors. Other instances revealed that signers were not residents in the district in which the petition was being circulated for a special election.

The old and well-known song, "London Bridge is Falling Down," derives from the old song 'London Bridge Is Broken Down," which was sung while the bridge was in a dilapidated and broken down condition. The public was very enthusiastic because many bills proposing repairs were introduced at this time.

Post-War World Faces Hard Task

State College President Points Out Consequences Of Victorious Peace

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 6.—President Ralph D. Hetzel of Pennsylvania State college today warned that the United States cannot escape the consequences of a victorious peace and the hard task that lies ahead in the post-war world.

"There is grave danger," he told graduates at the annual summer session commencement last night, "that we shall fail to sense or that we shall try to avoid this uncompromising truth. At the close of this contest we shall be seriously spent and we shall have no stomach for a task more exacting and more difficult than the waging of war."

"But our only salvation," he continued, "is to face the facts and to do the job thoroughly and well. No expanse of land or sea or anything whatsoever will protect us from the consequences and the responsibilities which inexorably follow upon the course of events and the set of circumstances which now prevail in the world."

Educated men and women must dedicate themselves to "the vital and glorious task of building a better world," he stated.

Asserting that America has never known the full pain and penalty of a devastating war, the Penn State president expressed the hope that another 12 months would bring the end of the war and with it the opportunity to launch the job of "rehabilitation, reorganization and reconstruction which lies ahead."

Degrees were awarded to 116 men and women, seven of them doctorates. Many of the recipients were Pennsylvania school teachers who qualified for their degrees by attending summer sessions for a number of years.

Plan For Funeral Of Judge Parker

Services To Be Conducted At Oil City On Saturday Afternoon

(International News Service)

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 6.—Funeral services will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon for State Supreme Court Justice William M. Parker, 72, for half a century a leading figure in Pennsylvania courts, who died suddenly of a heart attack in his home yesterday.

Justice Parker, an elder in the Second Presbyterian church, will be interred in the Grove Hill cemetery, friends of the family disclosed as messages of condolences poured in from many of the jurist's associates throughout the state.

Governor Edward Martin led the parade of high persons eulogizing Justice Parker who spent nearly three years on the supreme court bench, eight years in the superior court and nearly 35 years as an attorney in Pennsylvania courts.

"I am shocked to learn of Justice Parker's death," the governor declared. "He represented the very best of what the people expect from a public officer."

Later Governor Martin added that the vacancy caused by the unexpected passing of Justice Parker will be filled by executive appointment. The governor's appointee will hold office until January, 1945, although an election will be held November, 1944, for a justice to serve the full 21-year term.

Justice William B. Linn, a colleague on the Pennsylvania supreme court, told of the benefits reaped through association with Justice Parker "whose attainments made him invaluable in consultations."

Meantime, Chief Justic George W. Maxey directed that all the members of the high court be officially apprised of Justice Parker's death. Many of them are expected to be on hand for the funeral services.

BETTE DAVIS SUES RAILROAD FOR LOST TRUNK WORTH $1,900

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Bette Davis, motion picture actress, today sought damages against the New York Central railroad and the Pullman company for the loss of a trunk which she said contained apparel she valued in excess of $1,900.

She charged in a suit filed in circuit court that the defendants were responsible for the loss of the trunk which she said disappeared March 12, 1942, while she was enroute from New York to Hollywood.

THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUDDLES

would reap. Diligence in any sort of work was certain to be rewarded. Laziness and sloth were punished. Notwithstanding all the modern systems of education and in spite of the beautiful school buildings, there is about twenty per cent of the population of America today who are absolutely illiterate.

This fact has been disclosed very forcibly by the Draft into the military services. Among the draftees from sections scattered all over this country, have come men who are unable either to read or write and I know that in the training camps of Southern California it has been necessary to establish schools in which these draftees are taught the essentials of Reading, Writing and Arithmetic. As a matter of fact, if following this war, the United States would institute universal military training, the young men of this nation would receive a better education than they do now in the public schools. They would be taught, first of all, these essentials, together with the most important of all essentials—obedience to orders, obedience to law.

The lesson of obedience is just as essential as the lessons in the Thr R's. Children are not taught to obey at home; they are not taught to obey in the schools. The ruler and the birch rod are taboo; they are "agin'" the law. Even a father may be hailed into court for whipping his son and God help the schoolmaster who lays a violent hand upon any pupil.

How about it, folks?

The post-war rubber needs of the Americas will far exceed the pre-Pearl Harbor consumption. The tropical Americas, in the opinion of experts, will be in an enviable position to supply rubber for manufactured goods.

W. A. C. RECEIVES QUICK PROMOTION

(International News Service)

FORT DEVENS, Mass., Aug. 6—First Officer Helen W. Sheets of Washington, D. C., has set something of a record for promotion in the WAAC's. The WAAC officer, now stationed at Ft. Devens, went from Third to First Officer in 48 hours. While still a Third Officer and stationed at Des Moines, she was granted a furlough. The furlough had hardly begun when she received notice of a promotion from third to second officer. She immediately purchased silver bars to denote her rank but hardly pinned them on when she received a set of first officer bars and a letter from her commanding officer, congratulating her on her promotion.

Japs Are Building Airports In China

(International News Service)

CHUNGKING, Aug. 6—Japan reportedly is constructing two large airports in Hupeh province of China in the hope of forestalling major aerial assault by the Allies on the Japanese home islands, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

Fearing that their own country soon may be visited by raids such as have blasted Germany, the move apparently is being made to build bases from which to attack Allied airports in China, he said.

The Nipponese also are doing their utmost to check Allied submarine activities throughout the Far East, the spokesman said. He said that increased coastal patrols are being used off Fukien province and around the port of Swatow "calculated to tighten the blockade".

Brown Cracks Down On Any Statements By O. P. A. Employes

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 — Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today cracked down on unauthorized public statements by OPA employes and virtually turned over the keys to the agency of Chester Bowles, new general manager.

In a staff memorandum which accompanied an administrative order setting up Bowles as "senior deputy administrator," Brown said:

"No public statements by any employe of OPA shall be made without prior clearance with the responsible official of the information department, who on all matters of importance shall clear with the senior deputy administrator.

"This includes statements to the press, press interviews, radio addresses, and any other form of public statement on official business."

Brown's action stemmed from the recent letter of President Roosevelt to all federal officials informing them that hereafter public bickering would mean instant dismissal.

Says Pennsylvania Has Law Mentioned

Mention was made recently in The News of the fact that Governor Dwight H. Green of Illinois had signed a bill which provided that any school in that state which received state aid, must include United States history, the principles of American government and the use of the Australian ballot system.

State Senator J. K. McQuiddy calls attention to the fact that Pennsylvania has such a law, passed in the last session of the General Assembly and signed by Governor Martin on May 21. The bill provides that "during the last four years of a complete high school program, there shall be included a four semester or equivalent course in the study of history and government of that portion of America which has become the United States of America and of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Such action is coming in many states due to a recent national survey in which it was found that United States history had been neglected in the school systems.

Weitz Treasurer Of Battery Fund

In an article carried in The News on Wednesday describing the monument to Battery B, First Pennsylvania Light Field Artillery, placed on the Gettysburg Battlefield, were the names of committee chairmen in charge of the movement which resulted in the monument. On the list of names turned over to The News, the name of Charles Weitz, the treasurer, was omitted. Mr. Weitz was treasurer of the fund from its inception to the completion of the plan.

Subsidy Plan To Be Dropped

Such Is Report From Washington On Anti-Inflation Battle In Nation

MINIMUM PRICE PLAN PROPOSED

By ARTHUR F. HERMANN
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—President Roosevelt was reliably reported today to have abandoned the subsidy method of holding down living costs, and instead plans to ask congress for permission to guarantee American farmers minimum prices for their basic crops.

Well-informed sources stated that this plan to utilize "minimum support prices" is the framework of the new stabilization program announced by President Roosevelt as being readied for congressional action after the summer recess.

Set Minimum Prices

Under the new program, the Commodity Credit Corporation will set minimum prices for many farm products. These prices, it was said, will be determined after wartime costs of farm production have been taken into consideration.

In some instances, it was disclosed, support prices for farm commodities will be set at levels above present ceilings, and will result in an increase in the cost of living. But this increase is stated to be "infinitesemal" and should not be countered by any general increase in the present level of wages paid to industrial workers.

Contrary to previously published reports, the program does not contemplate scrapping the "Little Steel" formula for granting wage increases.

New Program

The new anti-inflation program is still in the discussion stage, with War Food Administrator Marvin Jones conducting the studies. It is understood that the present roll backs in butter and meat prices by direct subsidies may be abandoned because of Jones' conviction that they are "unworkable."

As the new program now stands, it represents a victory for farm bloc leaders who have long contended that any "realistic" program of stablization must take into consideration increasing cost of farm production. The plan likewise is expected to be met with approval by the farm-conscious congress, particularly because abandonment of the subsidy issue will be interpreted as being a congressional "victory" over the executive branch of the government.

Ask Congress Approval

Congress will be asked to approve the new program when Jones and other administration leaders lay their proposals before the house and senate and ask for appropriations for the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry it out. Rather large appropriations will be necessary, it is asserted, as the CCC may suffer some losses in backing up the support prices it will have set.

Estimates of the cost of the program are unobtainable, but it is understood that the outlay will be far less than under any program of direct, general subsidies.

The program has been developed to the point where Jones, according to these reliable sources, has made plans to summon both Democratic and Republican congressional leaders to a conference where he will outline the plan and ask their advice on the best way to bring the matter up for legislative action. A special message to congress by President Roosevelt, is considered to be a distinct possibility.

CITY DUMPS

The city provides locations for the disposal of trash. Men are employed to look after the dumps. Scavengers are licensed to haul ashes and refuse.

In spite of all this, some of our people persist in dumping trash along our river banks and in other places.

This practise is unsanitary and makes our city look bad.

It is hard to understand why people do this.

Public spirited citizens who are proud of our city do not approve of this dumping.

Public sentiment is the only influence strong enough to stop it.

One bank of the Neshannock looks pretty good. The other side looks pretty bad.

Chief Of Staff For MacArthur Discusses War

Brig. Gen. Chamberlain, Soldier For 35 Years, Condemns Need For War

By ART COHN
(INS War Correspondent)

GENERAL McARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Aug 6.—Dear Boss: I was told it is a waste of time attempting to interview General Stephen Chamberlain because none of the boys had been able to get a word out of him.

So I interviewed Brigadier General Chamberlain.

And found him to be a kindly, affable gentleman.

Naturally, as a vital head of the general staff, in charge of operations, you cannot expect him to pop off and tell me how many men will invade what at what hour of what day.

Came Up Hard Way

But I found out that he was born and reared in the sleepy little village of Spring Hill, Kas., where his father was in the feed business and where he went to high school but didn't finish because he wanted to become a soldier as soon as possible.

So he enrolled at West Point. That was in 1908. He has been in the army ever since, 35 years.

Name a garrison almost anywhere on the globe and the general has probably been there. He has patrolled the Mexican border and served in the Philippines and "put three years in Panama and a couple summers in Hawaii and..."

He came up the hard way and he is not ashamed of the struggle.

Evaluates Jap Soldier

Knowing General Chamberlain could not, for obvious reasons of security, be quoted on any technical or strategic details of his office, I sought broader avenues.

"How good is a Jap soldier?" I asked.

"He is skillful, cunning, courageous. By no stretch of the imagination can one conceive of 250,000 Japs surrendering in a body as the Germans and Italians were supposed to have done in Africa..."

There was a pause, then a significant postscript:

"Whether or not this will continue, I do not know..."

Philosophy of War

"After 35 years as a soldier, sir, what is your philosophy of war?"

"War is something to stay away from...not as individuals, but as nations."

"But, general," I asked, "do you think our so-called civilization has reached that stage of reason where we as nations can stay away from wars?"

There was a look of sadness in the general's eyes.

"It doesn't seem so, does it," he sighed.

"What, then, is the answer?"

"We must preserve the peace,' he said firmly. "We must do this, we cannot trust the German or the Jap to keep it. We must preserve the peace and always see to it that we have the power to enforce it."

Yours, A. C.

Famous Artist Killed In Action

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Lieut. Cmdr. MacClelland Barclay, killed in action in the South Pacific, found front line warfare not frightening, but "inspiring," his brother, Shepard Barclay, said today.

When informed by INS that Commander Barclay, the famous artist, had lost his life when a torpedo struck a landing vessel taking him to New Georgia Island, Shepard Barclay, writer and bridge expert for King Features Syndicate said:

"We were still hoping after we received word from the navy that 'Mac' was missing in action. We didn't know just what happened, but now you have given us the facts.

"In his last letter he told of being in action and said it was more than he had even anticipated. He was not scared he said, but inspired and thrilled by the heavy action."

The commander's brother said that if he had had a chance for survival, he would have come through "for 'Mac' was a good swimmer, game as they come and as hard as nails."

"Mac" he added, "stressed the morale and cooperation of the American forces. He put it this way: 'Any enemy you met was wearing the same (enemy) uniform.'"

OCD NOTES

Activities Of OCD Workers Are Outlined Here

Representatives of City OCD headquarters have visited several of the groups in their meetings recently. At these meetings they have brought up the different bulletins and literature that they have received regarding their work in civilian defense. These bulletins and booklets bring out many facts the civilian defense worker needs to know so that they can officially carry on their work. One good bulletin is "How to Protect Yourself Against Gas" and another is "Enemy Fire Bombs". These two items should be brought into discussion with all civilian defense groups, and if you do not have a copy, we have some "spares" at this office for you.

We again call attention to your gas masks. Those groups that have had masks issued should make certain that all masks fit properly. If they do not, we have smaller masks and larger masks to properly fit most any face. If yours does not fit, return it. We will gladly change it.

At the time OCD allowed 12 year olds to come into the messenger service, it was published both by newspaper and by a bulletin to group leaders, that these 12 year olds would only be allowed to work in and around the post on night time drill. Some of our leaders have apparently forgotten this, and are using these 12 to 15 year old youngsters for general messenger service. Your older messengers are to carry on the night time work away from the post. This is a reminder.

Says Rome Raid Was His Dullest

(International News Service)

MANOA, Pa., Aug. 6.—To Staff Sgt. William Drewes, of Manoa, the Rome bombing was the dullest of the 50 raids in which he has participated.

Drewes, 26, had returned to his home today to prepare to become an instructor in the Army Air Forces in this country.

"The Rome raid was not exciting at all," he said. "We were over our target, a railroad yard, for five minutes, and met very little opposition. We were disappointed because we expected a good fight."

A tail gunner who wears the air medal with 10 oak leaf clusters and the purple heart, Drewes said that five army doctors accompanied them on his 50th mission to observe the reactions of the men and determine if they could stand 75 consecutive combat flights.

All five were wounded in the raid, he said, and after that there was no more talk of 75 missions.

Church bells have been used in England for giving warning of national danger and peril, since the 10th century.

British Evacuee Helping Out On Chautauqua Farm

London Girl Survived Worst Of Bombings; Five Brothers In RAF

(International News Service)

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Jeanne Hazlewood, a young British girl, who lived in London through the worst of the bombings and who came to America on a convoy ship, has now joined the ranks of emergency workers on Chautauqua county fruit farms.

Jeanne can't keep her mind from wandering back those days of terror nor can she forget her desire to get back into the thick of things but while she's in America she's doing what she can to aid the victory efforts. She came with several schoolteachers from New York City to help out in the present labor crisis in this section.

Jeanne speaks proudly of her five brothers in the R. A. F., one a Japanese prisoner in Hong Kong, one in Ceylon, two in North Africa, and the fifth in training in Georgia. Her stepfather is an officer in the U. S. Navy.

When asked the stock question, "how do you like the United States," Jeanne admitted it wasn't as she expected to find it.

"I expected to find everyone chewing gum, and Chicago full of gangsters." She expressed great enthusiasm for the American jeep. "Those things can do anything," she said. "I think they could even fly."

The procedure engaged in by a reporter and photographer who wanted to interview the British girl was in itself something typical of America.

AIRCRAFT SPOTTER SAILS INTO WORK

(International News Service)

SNOW HILL, Md., Aug. 6.—A civilian aircraft observer at Snow Hill is literally sailing into his work.

Since gasoline rationing went into effect, Luther J. Lawson, 33, hasn't been using his car, and the seven miles to the post where he is on duty four hours weekly is a long walk.

Lawson discovered that there is navigable water from his home to the post so now each week he travels by sailboat.

Local Paratrooper Returns From Abroad

Lieut. David P. Taylor, attached to the parachute division of the army of the United States, is spending a short leave in New Castle following his return to this country from the European theater of war operations. Lieut. Taylor, who recently received a promotion to the rank of first lieutenant, will report to Fort Benning, Ga., at the end of his leave.

On Thursday, he visited his grandmother, Mrs. James K. Pollock, of East street. He is the son of Mrs. Rachel P. Taylor of 235 East Sheridan avenue. Mrs. Taylor, who is dietician at the Cleveland Girl Scout camp for the summer, also spent Thursday here.

USE MOBILE CONTROL TOWER FOR FLYING

(International News Service)

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Aug. 6.—To add to the safety of night flying for cadets at the Bainbridge Army Air Field, Captain Ray J. DiMartine, post communications officer has designed a mobile control tower. Mounted on a truck and powered by batteries, the mobile tower answers the problem of a control tower at night at auxiliary fields not convenient to power lines. Lacking visual contact with the ground and other planes at night, the flier depends more on the advice he receives from the officer on the ground. At auxiliary fields, where much of the night flying at the Bainbridge Field takes place, the mobility of the tower becomes extremely important because it can be moved according to wind changes, runways and other conditions.

NEWS AND VIEWS AT CAPITAL

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 6 — Gov Edward Martin has appointed secretary of internal affairs William S. Livengood, Jr., chairman of a committee to promote the showing of the film "This is the Army" throughout Pennsylvania. "The money will go to the army emergency relief fund," the Governor explained. . . The motion picture which will be shown nationwide for the fund's benefit, presents the humorous side of army life with Irving Berlin, star of the 1918 edition heading an all-army cast. . . The emergency relief fund provides financial aid for dependents of members of the armed forces.

The decision by selective service headquarters to draft "pre-Pearl Harbor fathers" if unable to fill draft quotas with other registrants is expected to result in swift changeovers by civilians from non-essential work to war industry employment. If registrants are engaged in war work and have been granted occupational deferments they probably will not be drafted unless their employers' manning and replacement tables call for placing another draft-exempt employe on the job . . . Many fathers failed to heed a warning several months ago for workers in scores of occupations to seek essential employment, believing they would not be drafted because of their wives and children. . . The new ruling however, probably will "flush" thousands of workers out of non-essential jobs.

The Department of Commerce has warned Pennsylvanians that wartime material shortages will make it almost impossible to replace some goods and has urged self-sufficiency programs. . . "As the period of the war is prolonged," the department stated, "More and more of the work of maintaining a home must be done in the home and less and less in the factory. . . . Old ways of living have to be revived. This fact has already been discovered in Canada and Great Britain neither of which countries has ever been so highly mechanized as our own . . . Beginning with household repairs and a change in the methods of cooking, as factory canned and prepared foods become less available, every town, every family every man, woman and child in a nation at war is called upon to become more and more self-sufficient."

Health standards in more than 200 boroughs and first class cities are endangered by a lack of sanitarians, the department of internal affairs has disclosed. . . "The health officers in boroughs and first class townships are generally poorly paid part-time employes who have had little or no training in public health work," the department stated. "Because of the unwillingness of local governing bodies to send their health officers to service schools conducted by the state department of health, not more than one-third of the local officers hold the state certificate that is required by law."

Ninety per cent of the inhabitants of Morocco wear glasses because of the constantly flying particles of sand in the air.

COAST GUARD BOPS GERMAN U-BOATS

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Aug. 6—United States Coast Guard crews prefer the thrill of fighting Nazi U-boats with deck guns rather than sinking them with depth charges. This is the opinion of Lieut. Francis J. McGee, Tufts College graduate, of Winthrop, in command of one of the batteries aboard the cutter Duane, which recently trapped a German submarine in the midst of an Atlantic convoy and sent it to the bottom after an hour's battle. "It was the thrill of a lifetime," McGee said. "The men in our crew were so good," he declared, "that they knocked the conning tower of the U-boat apart with the first shot, and sent the Nazi crew scurrying into the ocean."

CIRCUS STILL HOLDS LURE FOR JUVENILES

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 6—The circus, with its animals and acrobats does not seem to have lost its lure for the modern youth. Toledo police found this to be true when they apprehended 23 runaways who had joined the Cole Bros. Circus. One girl was included. Ages of the boys ranged from 14 to 17. Three men also were arrested for being unable to produce selective service cards.

Coffee Plentiful; Sales Decrease

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 — Now that coffee is plentiful and ration-free, Chicago grocers reported today that the public suddenly had lost enthusiasm in its purchase.

Some grocers said that sales were about the same, instead of the expected rush, while others experienced a falling-off in sales. One of the latter was E. E. Seeck, president of the Chicago and Cook County Food Dealers Association, who said:

"I used to handle five or six cases a day. I haven't handled that many this week."

Vegetable cheese is made from the milk of a cow tree in British Guiana.

TO AID FARMERS

GROVE CITY, Aug. 6—Nearly all of the 180 citizens of the George Junior Republic will be available this year to help county farmers harvest their crops, Supt. Arthur Prasse has informed the Emergency Farm Labor Service in Mercer.

Although the Republic has two large farms of its own under intensive cultivation, the number of boys, now at an all-time high, will make it possible to complete harvesting at the institution in time to render valuable assistance to county farmers, who have been under a severe handicap. During the summer, Republic boys have been helping neighboring farmers with planting and cultivation.

Report Flood Toll Fourteen

West Virginia Sector Is Struck By 'Flash Flood' Last Night

HEAVY PROPERTY DAMAGE CAUSED

(International News Service)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 6.—With the death toll already revised upwards twice, roving bands of rescue crews pursued the grim task today of scouring inundated central West Virginia for additional victims of raging flood waters which have claimed, according to initial reports, 14 known dead, nine missing and property damage estimated at over $2,000,000.

Braxton county was hardest hit by the swirling waters of the freak "flash flood" which rushed upon thousands of mountaineers without warning, but Calhoun and Ritchie counties also came in for a heavy share of the death and destruction.

Trapped While Asleep

Disaster officials of the Red Cross declared the greater part of the fatalities had occurred so far because the swollen waters over-ran the mountain communities while a majority of the trapped persons were sleeping and unable to get out of the path of the powerful tide.

State Police Sergeant L. L. Waugh reported the discovery of five bodies at Heaters, Braxton county, and said he had been reliably informed six others had been fished out at Copen, 20 miles away. At least five more persons were listed as missing at these two rural communities, and little hope was held for their safety.

State Trooper R. M. Reger, at Parkinsburg, disclosed that Floyd Nelson, 52, and his entire of four children were missing and believed drowned when the heavy Island creek swept away their tiny shack near Girta in Ritchie county.

Found In Ohio River

Reger added that the body of an eight-year-old girl, Virginia Nelson, said to be one of Floyd Nelson's daughters, was taken out of the converging Ohio river three miles from Parkinsburg.

An unidentified mother and her small daughter drowned in Calhoun county, reports from there indicated, and the toll in that section is expected to mount momentarily.

Corporal C. L. Hawkins of the Grantsville state police said he knew of two other women lost in the torrent of water but had been unable to identify them as yet in the confusion. He said the pair lived on an isolated farm squarely in the path of the little Kanawha river in Calhoun.

Corporal Hawkins placed the damage at Grantsville alone at "thousands of dollars" and declared he knew for certain that at least 12 houses, inhabited by 25 families, had been totally destroyed and the dwellers made homeless. He said the area's two schoolhouses suffered the same fate.

In addition to the lives lost and the homes washed away, considerable livestock was drowned, plus several important railroad bridges demolished and highways blocked.

PREVENTS BAD FIRE

GROVE CITY, Aug. 6—Prompt action of Officer Jack Hummel averted a serious fire in the business district early yesterday. While making his rounds, checking for unlocked doors, the officer saw a wisp of smoke in the interior of the Peters & Sloan electric store. He notified Harry Peters and within a few minutes the source of the smoke was traced to a small blaze in the basement. It was extinguished without damage.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—From pots and pans to hair oil, from chewing gum to spitfires—the British government supplies hundreds of thousands of tons of material yearly to American troops in the United Kingdom under "lend-lease in reverse," it was learned today.

Just back from a tour of inspection in Great Britain, Brig. Gen. Albert J. Browning, director of the purchase division, army service forces, told how Britain, as well as the U. S., gives under the lend-lease principle.

In an attempt to save America's "most critical material"—shipping space—the British are supplying U. S. troops with hundreds of different items every month, said Gen. Browning.

The Red Cross gets books, dart boards, medicine balls and phonograph records, made and supplied by Britain. The post exchanges get British-made British-paid-for cigarette papers, shoe brushes and laces, toilet soaps, safety pins, cough drops and the likes.

In 1943, said the general, the British will lend-lease our soldiers 33 million chocolate bars and 16,000,000 packages of chewing gum.

Weapons Of War Also

However, not only recreational and morale but also the weapons of war are supplied by the British. For example, oxygen, explosives, steel tanks, tools, camouflage equipment and copper wires are made by British factories and labor for U. S. use. The air forces are supplied with body armor, chemicals, de-icing supplies, electrical equipment, bombs and spitfire airplanes.

Laundry is paid for by the British. Indeed, a total of from 20,000 to 30,000 civilians are working for the U. S. service man and are compensated by the British government.

Strange Items For Yanks

Strange items pop up in the huge lend-lease in reverse books kept by the army service forces. For example, in the last six months the British have delivered 5,500,000 clay pigeons for use by aerial gunners in skeet-shooting. Approximately 50,000 bicycles have been built for use by American flyers for getting from place to place on the vast airfields.

The British have built and are operating for American use a can factory to turn out gasoline cans for airplanes. Arrangements are now being completed to have the British make tires for our army out of rubber supplies by the U. S.

Transportation Paid

They have requisitioned many civilian passenger cars from American use and paid for all transportation within Britain of American officers and men on official duty.

British manufacturing has aided in overcoming several "bottlenecks" of U. S. production, state Gen. Browning. For example, he told a news conference this country "would not have been able to meet our surgical instruments without British help."

Severe hand tool and goggle shortages have been overcome with British aid.

Good Tips Offered For Drying Fruits, Vegetables At Home

Nutrition Specialists Advise Drying Quickly, Evenly, Continuously

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 6.—For the housewife who is contemplating drying fruits and vegetables at home, here are seven good tips from Lydia Tarrant and Eleanor Winters, nutrition specialists at the Pennsylvania State college.

To dehydrate successfully, the housewife should:

1. Select top quality foods, clean well, and cut uniformly.
2. Blanch or steam before drying.
3. Dry quickly and evenly. This means starting vegetables in a preheated oven of 150 to 160 degrees and gradually decreasing the temperature to between 140 and 150 degrees. Fruits should bt started at 160 to 175 degrees and the heat gradually reduced to 250 degrees during the drying process.
4. Stir frequently to assure evenness of drying.
5. Dry continuously. Do not dry partially and then finish the job later.
6. Keep the air in the oven or cabinet drier in circulation.
7. To test for dryness, squeeze a handful of dried fruit. If there is no moisture left on the hand and the fruit is springy and falls apart when pressure is released, like a handful of rubber bands, the fruit is properly dry. Berries and vegetables should be dry enough to rattle on trays.

All of the minerals in fruits and vegetables are preserved in the drying process, but vitamin content is reduced, the nutrition specialists said.

Tables and methods for drying may be obtained free on request of circular 247 from the agricultural extension service of the Pennsylvania State college.

Houck Is Named On Commission

Governor Martin Appoints Schuylkill County Man To Place On P. U. C.

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 6.—The appointment of Henry Houck, or Pottsville, former president judge of the Schuylkill county common pleas court as a member of the state public utility commission was announced Thursday by Gov. Edward Martin. He will receive $10,000 a year.

Houck succeeds Richard J. Beamish, Harrisburg Democrat, whose term expired on April 1. He is a Republican.

Houck's term will expire April 1, 1953. He was born in Greensburg in 1892 and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania law school in 1918. He served as Schuylkill county judge from 1928, when he was appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher, until 1929. He is the son of Paul Houck, former chairman of the workmen's compensation board and Schuylkill county Republican chairman.

Houck was the second person appointed to succeed Beamish. The state senate refused to confirm the nomination by the governor of Dr. Frank Parker, of Philadelphia.

ONE-TIME PRODIGY NOW BUILDING SHIPS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 6—From lecture tours as a child genius to helping build ships to beat the Axis—that is the story of Jack Keck, truck driver and shop steward at the Oregon shipbuilding corporation yard. Keck began his stage appearances at the age of 8, when he tourned the west and mid-west with a model set of locks explaining to adult audiences how the Panama Canal was going to work. One of his first appearances was before a teachers' convention at Los Angeles. Billed under the name Jack Walker, Keck then acted as master of ceremonies or vocalist at night clubs and took parts in dramatic stock shows for 26 years. He now acts as master of ceremonies for employers' programs at the yard and as a shop steward, is delegated to negotiate minor employe grievances with management representatives.

Fiendish Mine Traps Are Laid

Retreating Germans In Sicily Sow Mines In Every Location

HAMPERS ADVANCE OF YANKS SOMEWHAT

By MICHAEL CHINIGO
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH U. S. FORCES ON NORTH SICILIAN COAST ROAD TO MESSINA, Aug. 5 — (Delayed) — Power shovels, cranes and bulldozers are in the vanguard of the American advance towards Messina today.

Nazi strategists, playing for time either to get the bulk of Nazi troops out of Sicily or to underwrite Italian Premier Pietro Badoglio's government with a dozen new divisions of German troops, have been carrying on the most extensive demolition seen on any front, sowing minefields between blown-up bridges along the narrow north Sicilian shore.

Keeping an army on the move through a narrow one-way traffic lane strewn with obstacles and bobby traps is a perilous job. But our doughboys are learning the hard way to rest in the shade of a tree during a long wait may mean death. Some day anti-personnel mines may be outlawed, as poison gas is, for they certainly are inhumane.

Five of our boys stepped to the outside of the road this morning at dawn to heat a pot of coffee. In the semi-darkness one stepped on a mine. None of them had their coffee.

Our boys who see such evidence of devilish Boche cunning vow again and again to kill all Germans.

Despite the obstacles presented by dozens of blown-up bridges and man-made landslides, fresh American forces are moving east along the coast and have pushed 10 miles beyond San Stefano Camastra.

Officers and men unanimously heap praise on Lieut. Col. Leonard Bingham of Philadelphia, the division's engineer, and his crew for their remarkable feats of providing detours and repairing bombed roads.

I watched one of Col. Bingham's crews dig its way through the debris of a destroyed 12-span bridge while enemy artillery shells dropped all around us. Col. Bingham commented:

"When the enemy blew up one bridge every couple of miles, it was interesting. But now it is getting monotonous. They are acting like vandals, blowing up every bridge, every dried-up creek and every hundred yards or so of roadway.

"It's just plain silly. They ought to know they can't stop us and that we'll surely get at them where it hurts the most long before the rains come."

Legion Auxiliary Stages Bond Drive

Memory Of Mollie Pitcher, Revolutionary War Heroine To Be Honored

Purchasers of war bonds and stamps on Saturday at the bond booths on North Mill street and the New Castle store, which will be manned by members of the Ladies Auxiliary of Perry S. Gaston Post, American Legion, will be rewarded with a Mollie Pitcher tag.

The American Legion Auxiliary units throughout the nation are cooperating in this effort during the current week, and as a result thousands of dollars worth of bonds and stamps are expected to be sold to help the war effort.

Mollie Pitcher was America's first war heroine. At the battle of Monmouth, she dispensed pitchers of water to the American soldiers fighting the British, and when her husband, manning a cannon, was wounded she stepped into the breach and fired the cannon herself.

Tags, bearing a replica of Molly Pitcher, will be given to all bond and stamp purchasers tomorrow by the women of these two bond booths.

Mrs. Stuart M. Cope, chairman of the effort, will be assisted by Mrs. James Cooper, county chairman of national defense.

Phillippe Pettigrew of Montreal, Canada, lost his lead whistle and 53 years later doctors X-rayed him and found it.

Replacement Of Crop Insurance Is Being Urged

President Of National Farmer's Union Says Roosevelt's Support Assured

By ERWIN D. SIAS
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, today said he has been assured of President Roosevelt's support in his determined effort to put crop insurance back in the farm program when congress reconvenes.

Confident that congress will reinstate provisions for crop protection despite the fact they were liquidated with passage of the agriculture appropriations bill, Patton said:

"We have been assured of support from President Roosevelt and a majority of the senate in our proposal to reinstate crop insurance next fall."

Patton pointed out that in signing the agriculture bill, the president issued a statement accompanying the measure which expressed his "regret" that crop insurance was sliced off the farm program.

"One of the greatest obstacles which confronts the farmer in maintaining a stable income is the hazard of weather," the president wrote at that time, adding he hoped congress on its return would provide funds to continue crop insurance.

The farmers' union chief likewise called attention to the fact that the senate, which "voted consistently in favor of continuing crop insurance in the bill," served notice it would eventually back reinstatement of the program by attaching a crop insurance rider to a non-agriculture bill.

Early Collapse Of Sicily Defense Is Now Forecast

(International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 6.—Heavy new attacks by United States A-36 Invaders against enemy shipping of Milazzo in northeastern Sicily in which two 200-foot vessels, 14 barges and two seaplanes were sunk were disclosed at Allied headquarters this afternoon.

Observers said the present "blitz" attack against Axis outposts are reminiscent of the last days of the Tunisian campaign, foreshadowing early collapse of enemy defenses.

Eight separate concrete air attacks were made against the Adrano area of Sicily, with negligible anti-aircraft fire and no fighter interception encountered.

Successive waves of American bombers attacked the toe of Italy smashing railway trucks and motor transport.

Up to August 4, an announcement said, more than 800 enemy planes were found abandoned at air fields on Sicily.

After chapel in the morning which featured Fred Shearer and Ralph Stokes making their chapel talks in order to pass their fourth year tests, the morning and afternoon activities were baseball, volleyball, swimming and boating.

Probe In Draft Of Fathers Likely

Congressional Investigation Of Order Appears To Be Developing

By WILLIAM E. ZIMMERMAN
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—A congressional investigation into the draft fathers order loomed today as government manpower officials disclosed that acute labor shortages in war plants may force greater pressure on men in less essential jobs.

As draft boards throughout the country were reclassifying men with children in preparation for their induction beginning Oct. 1, members of a special House committee promised a probe into the matter.

The promise came from Reps. Costello (D) Calif., and Harness (R) Ind., who are in Los Angeles conducting hearings on manpower shortages for the House Military Affairs committee.

The two congressmen said that further hearings will be held upon their return to Washington to determine the "need for drafting fathers and to make sure that everything possible will be done to obviate the necessity of drafting fathers and breaking up the homes of America."

In a joint statement, Costello and Harness also recommended that there be no draft of fathers "until there has been a complete re-examination of all persons classified as 4-F," unfit for military service.

They called on congress to make a complete review of the entire military program and study the size of the American army "in relation to the amount of aid and cooperation which we now can expect from our Allies."

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., who rose in arms against the drafting of men with children, meanwhile demanded that the fathers draft be postponed a month to give Congress more time to act on the question.

Wheeler, who is in Montana, sent a telegram to manpower chief Paul V. McNutt calling for a change in dates after Senate minority leader McNary said he could see no reason to call Congress back from its summer recess because of the fathers draft plan. Wheeler had warned Wednesday that he would demand that Congress return now instead of Sept. 14 as scheduled if McNutt did not modify the draft order.

In his telegram to McNutt, Wheeler declared that induction of fathers would wreak many injustices and said the fact that the House has passed the Kilday bill and his own "draft fathers last" measure has been placed first on the Senate calendar "should show you the sentiment in congress and the country regarding this matter." The Kilday bill would force induction of all other eligibles before men with children.

Military police occupy a room facing the bank, but the windows of the army command headquarters have been painted.

Warm Welcome As Usual In Catania For British Army

Sicilians Greet Conquerors Joyously; Evacuees Stream Back

GERMANS LEFT MANY AREAS HEAVILY MINED

By RICHARD TREGASKIS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

CATANIA, Aug. 5.—(Delayed)—The British eighth army's entry into Catania today was greeted by the usual throng of Sicilians joyously clapping their hands, throwing almonds at the Britons and shouting "viva Ingleterra!" or simply "viva!"—Italian equivalents of "hail England!" and "hooray!"

We found the city badly wrecked from earlier bombings but many shops and buildings were still standing untouched. Catanians who had previously fled the city are now streaming back riding carts, horses and mules and afoot.

British patrols first entered the city last night, following this morning by forward elements of the main body. In their advance up the coastal road, the troops met little opposition except from nests of pillboxes and barbed wire at the southern extremity of the city and from one knot of enemy infantry which was driven out last night.

Few Germans Left

The Germans probably left only a few companies to fight a delaying action in Catania. Two companies of Italians promptly surrendered while the remaining Germans fought on stubbornly and withdrew under cover of darkness during the night.

The enemy left many areas heavily mined, which are being carefully circumvented by advancing traffic. They also tried to block roads with artillery fire during the night but the firing has ceased now.

The time is now 9:30 p. m. We passed the enemy's sentry gate before the town at 8:15, where the leading elements of the main British eighth army had passed unopposed this morning.

Withdrew Three Days

Italians told us the enemy withdrawal began three days ago and that the Germans spent the last five days sowing minefields. Axis abandonment of the city had been expected by the British for several days, since the recent capture of key enemy positions facing the British left flank, at Centuripe and Regalbuto, rendered straightening of the German line inevitable.

Allied aircraft had been busy the last three days strafing enemy columns of personnel and supplies withdrawing northward.

Outdoor Games Are Resumed At Y Camp After Rainy Spell

Camp Rentz Boys Again At Baseball, Swimming As Sun Comes Out

After two days of rain, Thursday found the sun shining again over Camp Rentz and the boys were back to their normal activities. Baseball and volleyball, swimming and boating occupied the time of the boys in the morning and afternoon. Dinner time found the boys sitting down to a very appetizing roast beef dinner which was prepared by Mrs. Saul, camp cook. Several of the boys also enjoyed the results of a day's fishing.

Among the varied activities on Wednesday the following boys were found to be champs of the camp in the following activities: boating, Dick Onash; ping pong, Arnold Lewis; checkers, Charles McGary. Runnersup were Jack Sweesy, Jim Cox and Cliff Rowland.

Thursday evening the boys enjoyed an all-star game between the older boys of the camp and the camp counselors. Later in the evening the boys cheered and rooted their way through the eight reels of silent movies which were shown by Jack Boyles.

LAUNCH PROBE IN ESCAPE OF KRUG

Recaptured German Flier Is Back In Confinement At Canadian Prison Again

(International News Service)

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Aug. 6—Oberleutnant Hans Peter Krug was returned to confinement here today as military authorities launched an intense investigation to determine his method of escape, and the procurement of forged credentials.

When recaptured early yesterday at North Bay, Ont., Krug had a Canadian registration card, and forged letters from various Ontario factories stating that he had been employed and could be recommended.

Gravenhurst authorities considered revoking privileges granted the Nazi flier and doubling his guard.

Krug's mysterious escape, details of which he refused to divulge, was his second from a Canadian prison camp—the first from Bowmanville in April 1942, resulting in the conviction on treason charges of Max Stephen, Detroit restauranteur.

USO Girls Guests At Dance Thursday At Shenango Camp

Mrs. Geo. Bolinger Takes Over Hundred Girls To Join Others At Transfer For Dance

A caravan of New Castle young ladies wended their way in three chartered busses Thursday evening to Shenango Replacement Depot at Transfer for a dance planned under the chairmanship of Mrs. Olive Bolinger, who has charge of the local USO center, and Lieut. I. Ollicker.

The local USO center, which is practically in its infancy, has made great strides. Activities are continuous with hostesses being stationed throughout every afternoon and evening to welcome and entertain the lads in uniform who drop by. Keeping up the morale is the purpose of the USO programs, and Mrs. Bolinger, who served in World War I, is serving in this way by giving free of her time and effort, in making the USO a success. She plans weekly approximately three trips, taking in Transfer, Slippery Rock and Conneaut where servicemen are stationed.

It has been found that a more definite service can be offered and more soldiers reached by taking the girls to the various camp centers and share planned programs.

Contributing to the success of the dance last night was the music played by an orchestra formed by talented musicians of lads stationed there. Several hundred participated, the New Castle group joining girls from Warren, O., Mercer, Sharon and surrounding vicinities.

Typical of groups serving constantly for the USO aiding Mrs. Bolinger are senior hostesses like those who served at Transfer last evening: Mrs. Coletta Durbin, Jean Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Miller, Mrs. L. A. Wygant, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Duff, Cleora Williams, Sally Cleland, Gertrude Dagnon, Mrs. Don Eckles, Cecelia Turner, Ann Hitchen and Mary O'Laughlin.

Harold Lloyd Loses Old Films In Fire At Home

(International News Service)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 6.—Film Comedian Harold Lloyd today took inventory of $2,000,000 worth of partially destroyed silent-day screen originals which were believed lost in an explosion and fire of a firm vault on his estate yesterday.

The bespectacled actor feared that such early-day classics as "Grandma's Boy," "The Freshman," "Safety Last," "Why Worry" and "Welcome Danger" were in the vault.

Lloyd himself barely escaped death when he attempted to enter the smoke and flame-filled structure. Seven firemen and a gardener at the Lloyd estate were overcome by fumes.

The explosion, of undetermined origin, blew out one wall of the film vault. The fire burned Lloyd's spacious gymnasium and a handball court.

Will Check Lag In Plane Output

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. — The White House disclosed today that Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, had been assigned the task of checking the lag in war plant production.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said that the War Mobilization Board had discussed the drop in airplane production with President Roosevelt at its last meeting, and had turned the matter over to McNutt "to try to work something out."

McNutt, Early said, still has the problem under study.

Early, by inference, denied published reports that Berntrd M. Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board during the first world war, had been called in to attempt to find a solution.

Our so-called complacency is simply the honest conviction, supported by experience, that Japs and Germans are no match for us when we get equipped.

AROUND CITY HALL

Ninteen persons paid a fine of $1 at police headquarters Thursday for having violated the parking meter ordinance.

Auto of Frank Sowash, Neshannock avenue, which was reportedly stolen last night, was later returned to Neshannock avenue.

Permits for construction issued at the bureau of building follow: Joe Bertrucci, rear porch, 717 Oak street; Mrs. Martha Speyer, remodel fram dwelling, 124 North Jefferson street; Carl Albertino, addition to building for shop, 1102 Butler avenue.

Contractor Roy Furman, who received the city award to resurface city maintained streets, was here last night and told city officials his equipment would reach here in about 10 days and resurfacing would immediately get under way.

Other Neutrals To Be Affected By Sweden's Action

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Sweden's decision to suspend Nazi troop traffic through that country was based on a knowledge of conditions inside Germany that will be noted by other neutral nations, NBC reported from London today.

Sweden's information on conditions in Germany will be shared by other neutrals, such as Turkey, Peterson said, adding the Swedish decision, "one of the most significant of the war," was warmly received in Britain.

DENAL BY JEFFERS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The office of rubber director William M. Jeffers today denied a published report that Jeffers would shortly issue a progress report revising upward the estimate of synthetic rubber tire production for the balance of this year.

"There are no present plans to publish a new progress report before early October," Jeffers' office said, adding that the director "regretted this announcement which was due to a misunderstanding within his own office.

Price Increase On Frozen Vegetables And Fruits Given

Increase In Labor Costs Is Given As Reason For Action By O.P.A.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The office of price administration today authorized an increase in prices for the 1943 pack of frozen fruits, berries and vegetables to cover increases in labor costs since last October.

In some cases the OPA said, the increase will be negligible while in others the cost to the consumers may rise two and three cents a pound.

Price Administrator Prentiss Brown said that the increased prices were based upon higher wages sanctioned by the War Labor Board and had the approval of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson.

"Information possessed by the OPA indicates that packers generally are unable to absorb these (wage) increases, and that actual losses will be incurred if the (price) increases are not granted," Brown said.

Commodities on which prices were increased include asparagus, lima beans, apples, peaches, cherries, apricots, grapes, strawberries, raspberries and blackberries.

In addition, the OPA authorized increases in prices to cover higher raw material costs on asparagus and wild blueberries. The agency authorized an additional one-half cent per pound for asparagus and California, Oregon and Washington.

The 1943 raw material price for wold blueberries was raised to a flat 12 cents for the state of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermant and Massachusetts, the principal states where blueberries are processed.

The previous market price was from eight and one-half to 11 cents.

No increase for labor was permitted for snap beans, corn and peas, which are included in the subsidy arrangements of the commodity credit corporation.

It was also learned that the OPA plans soon to authorize price increases for other frozen vegetables including cauliflower, broccoli, and brussels sprouts.

One per cent of all timber in construction in the United States during 1934 is said to have been destroyed by termites.

Quiet Reigns In Vancouver After Near Riot

(International News Service)

VANCOUVER, Wash., Aug. 6.—Quiet reigned in Vancouver today following last night's near riot in which four persons were injured and 15 arrested as police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of several hundred which gathered before the city hall.

There were no racial phases. Violence was limited to fist fights and stone throwing, police said.

An unidentified soldier was taken to the Vancouver Barracks hospital with a skull injury and a policeman and two civilians were sent to hospitals.

A crowd estimated at nearly 1500 persons gathered to jeer at police and carry on sporadic fist fights but scattered when firemen laid hoses as a threat.

The trouble began when a "bouncer" ejected the soldier from a restaurant. The soldier slugged the "bouncer," officials said, and three policemen sped to the scene.

CAN SAVE GRAIN WHEN COWS ARE ON PASTURE

Where grain feed is hard to obtain, other supplements may be used for dairy cows when pastures become short and are not furnishing the abundant feed they did early in the season.

The feeding of dry hay on pasture is always a good practice, but particularly true if grain is not available. Corn silage left in the silo from the past winter also may be used to good advantage at this time. Any green feed, such as soybeans, green corn, or sudan grass likewise may be used with good results.

If extra hay is not needed for next winter's feeding, the pasturing of second crop clover and second or third crop alfalfa will help to fill the need for more feed now. Care in pasturing these crops is necessary to prevent injuring the stand and some dry feed should be fed first to prevent cows gorging themselves and becoming bloated.

HARVEST VEGETABLES WHEN QUALITY IS BEST

Greatest satisfaction man be obtained from the garden by taking the vegetables when their quality is best. Some vegetables should be harvested long before maturity, others a short time before maturity, and still others when fully mature. Some remain in the best stage for eating only a few days while others deteriorate very slowly.

Before the pods are full-grown and while the seeds are very immature is the best time to harvest snap beans. The pods of lima beans are picked as soon as they become well filled and while they are still dark green.

Small, young, smooth beets, 1½ to 2 inches in diameter, are likely to be firm, tender, and free from growth cracks and scars. Large carrots may be tender if not grown too slowly and are reported to contain more sugar than the very young, small ones.

Tender young shoots of broccoli with green flower clusters are harvested and the whole stalk, including stem, leaves and flower clusters, is eaten. Solid heads of cabbage with green outer leaves are considered best and the green savoy cabbage is reputed to be high in nutritional value.

Freshly cut cauliflower of best quality is white, with no brown spots, and has a firm, compact curd without fuzziness or spreading clusters. As soon as celery stalks are large enough to be eaten, the plants may be harvested.

High quality in sweet corn is found only when the ears are harvested just before maturity and the corn is cooked at once or stored at a temperature just above freezing.

Dark green, smooth, firm cucumbers, with no depressions and picked before the seeds have fully developed, taste best on the salad plate.

Young, tender greens, such as beet tops, kale, leaf lettuce, spinach and Swiss chard are harvested as soon as large enough to use and before seed stalks appear. Only young, tender knobs of kohlrabi, not over 2½ inches in diameter, are suitable for eating.

Freshly picked tomatoes from the home garden are usually best in flavor and quality . The best tomatoes are fully red, or purplish red, firm, smooth and heavy.

Glove or round turnips usually are higher in quality than the flat, early maturing varieties. Two to 2½ inches in diameter is considered a good size to avoid woody, pithy or bitter roots.

SELECT PULLETS THAT WILL PRODUCE BEST

Every pullet chick that goes into the brooder house has certain possibilities for growth, for living, or for egg production, depending upon her background of breeding.

Not every pullet chick reaches the goal, however, because of the setbacks that occur during the growing period.

When the pullets are placed in the laying house some do not have the stamina to stand up under heavy production. Perhaps they do not have the growth and body development necessary or characteristic of their breed or variety. However, they may be well fleshed and so are valuable for sale as meat.

With feed high in price and difficult to obtain poultrymen should select for egg production only those pullets which they know by observation or handling are equipped to do their job well.

Pick out deep bodied pullets, carrying good length and width of back, a thick, firm covering of flesh, excellent coloring of flesh and shanks in the yellow-skinned breeds, sleek plumage and complete feather growth, and the reddened head parts that indicate production has begun or is about to begin.

A sturdy, vigorous pullet is clean upstanding in appearance, alert and active, with bright, prominent well-rounded eyes in a shapely feminine head.

House only those pullets that are ready to lay. Allow the slower-developing pullets a few more weeks on range until they, too, are equipped by nature to do their job of egg laying.

CAN AVOID FLAT SOUR IN HOME CANNED FOODS

It's most important that every jar of food canned at home must be saved for next winter's meals. This means avoiding spoilage of any kind, states Miss Josephene Simpson, home economics extension representative, Lawrence county.

Flat sour, a type of food spoilage that may occur in vegetables, particularly in beans, corn and peas, can be avoiled if homemakers take a few precautions in canning. Any one of the following reasons may be the cause of food flat souring:

1. Using poor quality foods—foods that are unfit for canning because they are wilted overripe, decayed or not fresh.

2. Harvesting foods and allowing them to stand too long before starting the actual canning, or allowing the prepared product to stand too long before canning it.

3. Preparing or trying to can too many jars of food at one time.

4. Packing the jars too tight.

5. Not adding enough liquid to a jar. Heat penetrates food in a jar during processing much better if some liquid is added.

6. Allowing the filled jars of food to stand before putting them into the boiling water bath or pressure cooker.

7. Not exhausting all the air in the pressure cooker and getting a good flow of steam before closing the petcock and starting to count the processing time.

8. Not keeping the jars covered with an inch of water in the boiling water bath.

9. Improper cooling of jars after processing period is ended. Allow the pressure cooker gauge to return to zero before lifting the cover to remove the jars. Remove the jars immediately from the boiling water bath and allow them to cool. Jars should stand in an upright position and have space around each jar for air to circulate. Do not cover the jars with a cloth or put them into boxes or store them until thoroughly cold. Cooling takes 12 to 24 hours.

10. Improper storage. Canned products require a dark, dry, cool place. An even temperature between 40 and 50 degrees Fahrenheit is ideal.

If food flat sours before the processing period begins, processing will stop further action of the bacteria but will not destroy the taste and odor which already have developed.

TELLS WHEN TO CLIP THIS YEAR'S SEEDING

Should the new clover or alfalfa seeding be clipped or pastured this year? That is a question many Lawrence County farmers will be asking soon.

Last year some clover fields which made a very rank growth were cut for hay in September. Some of these did not produce as large and vigorous a hay crop this year as was expected of them. Experiments over many years in Ohio, reviewed by J. B. R. Dickey, extension agronomist of the Pennsylvania State College, threw some light on the subject and give some help toward deciding if and when clipping is advisable.

Red, monmouth, and alsike clover were never injured and sometimes were benefited by clipping August but in some seasons were definitely injured by cutting after September 1. Alfalfa also suffered definite injury from September clipping and sometimes from August cutting.

Sweet clover was hurt by any clipping, but September and late August cutting was especially detrimental. Sweet clover in particular and the other clovers and alfalfa to a large extent develop their root systems and store food in them in late summer. If the top is cut off during this period, root development and root reserves are reduced and the plants less well equipped to survive the winter and to make a vigorous growth the next spring.

July or early August clipping reduces competition with weeds, gets rid of the stubble, and makes cleaner looking fields. If it is to be done at all, clipping apparently should be done early to give clover and alfalfa time to make plenty of new growth before fall. In clipping, the mower should be set low, not high. Weeds cut high are less injured and soon come on again. Alfalfa and red clover make all renewal growth from the crown, and high cutting is of no benefit to them. In 15 years of work, the Ohio reports show no injury from low cutting of alfalfa and clover compared with high clipping.

Sometimes in a wet season, the September growth of red clover gets so large that it may have a smothering effect, harbor mice, and make dirty hay the following year. If this seems likely to occur, it may best be clipped in August to set back the growth, or cows may be turned in to graze and tramp down the growth. Alfalfa seedings seldom get so heavy or smother and are usually best left alone.

Going to seed in the seeding year does not seem to hurt red clover, according to the Ohio experiments. In one case, a red clover crop made 1.7 bushels of seed per acre the first year and two heavy hay crops the next year. Removal of the seed crop, however, does leave the ground dangerously bare over winter. Combining such a crop high might not be so bad, and with the present seed shortage might be warranted.

Ohio also has done some interesting work where the grain was combined and a high stubble left. In the case of sweet clover sown for soil improvement, the best procedure seems to be to let the stubble stand and plow it down along with the sweet clover. If the straw is needed for use, the Ohio people advise mowing and removing immediately after harvest. If the straw is not needed, but an alfalfa or clover hay crop is to be cut the next year, they found that mowing at once, with the divider board removed, allowed the legume to come through the layer of straw and cut off the weeds. With the straw down near the ground and shaded by the legume, it will be sufficiently rotted the next year so as not to pick up with the hay. Even in the driest summers, this mowing caused no damage. Where the straw was very heavy, it sometimes was better for the seeding to remove it.

According to estimates, 3,000 tons of tin will be saved in 1943, and 5,000 tons in 1944, by reducing the tin content and adding silver to the lead solder of new cans being manufactured.

Oil-Making Plants Would Provide Jobs In Post-War Period

Proposed Vast New Industry Would Supplement, Not Replace, Oil Industry

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 6.—Demonstration plants for producing oil from coal would provide the basis for a vast new industry in post-war days that would give employment to returning soldiers and idle war workers, Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, predicted today.

Sen. O'Mahoney, author of a bill to permit the Federal Bureau of Mines to operate the plants, explained that "it is not the aim of the bill to replace or destroy the oil industry, but rather to supplement it."

Senate hearings on the bill opened today at the Bureau of Mines central experimentation station in Pittsburgh, where synthetic fuels from coal have been produced on a small scale since 1935. First witness before the committee was Dr. R. R. Sayers, of Washington, director of the Bureau of Mines.

Others expected to testify are Dr. H. H. Storch and Dr. W. G. Schroeder, who recently inspected synthetic fuel plants in England; Dr. A. C. Fieldner, chief of the Bureau of Mines fuels and explosives service; P. H. Price, Pennsylvania state geologist, and M. N. Leighton, chief of the Illinois geological survey.

Sen. Chan Gurney, of South Dakota, a member of the sub-committee of war materials, which is conducting the hearing, said:

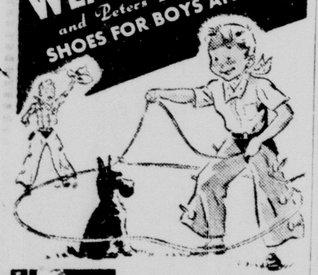

"With the nation facing depletion of its petroleum reserves, the committee feels that it is advisable to keep the reserves in the ground and use synthetic fuel to keep our oil reserves for future emergencies."

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes in Washington yesterday, estimated that the nation's oil reserves would last only 14 or 15 years. He endorsed the O'Mahoney bill authorizing operation of the synthetic plants.

"Comin' Through the Rye" does not mean a field of grain as is supposed by many people but refers to the fording of the Little River Rye. It was the custom to exact a toll of kisses from girls who were met when crossing the stream on the stepping stones.

"Tell people you feel good, even if you don't." Yes, that is heroic, but if you pretend to be morally better than you are, you're a darned hypocrite.

Elder A. C. Leads City Loop; Moose Topped By Indies

Slated for induction in the U. S Navy tomorrow, Carl Withrow hurled the Elders A. C. to the top of the City Baseball league by vanquishing the Shenango Pottery, 8-4, Thursday night on Marshall field.

The Elders' rise to the first place post by a full game was made possible by the Lawrence Indies' 14-5 drubbing of the Moose club.

Master Of Situation

In his farewell appearance Withrow was complete master after his mates broke a 4-all deadlock in the fourth. Withrow limited his opponents to four hits. He received poor support as he watched his team commit five errors.

For good measure, Withrow blasted two hits to share honors with Mingione. Hughes got three of the Potters' four safeties.

On Lee avenue field, the Indies got past their jinx, Ralph Ferrante, by shelling the Moose twirler and sending the Rodenbaughmen down to second place.

Score Eight Times

After a 2-2 first, the Indies garnered three markers. The Moose was out of the setto from there on. In the sixth, the first half champs went wild as they clattered plateward eight times.

Rainey and Pitcher Anderson led the onslaught with a pair of doubles apiece. Frigione featured for the losers.

Tonight on Mahoning field, the Elders and Lawrence Indies play a recently postponed fray.

Legion All Stars Win Another Game

Team Chosen To Represent Perry S. Gaston Post Defeats Challengers

With Fox in fine fettle on the mound last evening, the American Legion All Stars, the composite team chosen to represent the post in district competition, had an easy time defeating the Keystone Challengers on the Lehigh Field, the score being 8-0. Fox allowed but four scattered hits.

Tanner and Owoc led at bat for the All Stars, the former with three hits and the latter with two.

Chairman Moffatt announces that the All Stars will play the Fannins on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Lehigh Field.

Max Butcher, Bucco Hurler, Army Bound

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 6—Big Max Butcher is the latest of Manager Frankie Frisch's sorely depleted Pirate pitching staff to head for the army, it was announced today.

Butcher remained in Pittsburgh to take his final physical examination while the Buccos headed for St. Louis to open a four-game series with the champion Cardinals.

Mountainous Max, six foot three and weighing 220 pounds, has been 1-A for more than six months. He'll get a three-week furlough if he passes his "screen test." The Pirates recently lost hurlers Jack Hallett and Johnny Lanning to the army.

CHICAGO—Alsab, one of the country's ranking four-year-olds, will say adieu to Chicago today and head for the east, passing up tomorrow's $10,000 Chicago handicap at Washington Park in which he was entered. The Al Sabath star will make his 1943 debut in the $5,000 Pawtucket handicap Monday at Narragansett Park.

Yanks In Philly; Pirates To Face St. Louis Tonight

East American Leaguers Go West While West National Team Come East

REDS DOWN CUBS BY 4-1 MARGIN

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—After a two-day halt during which only two games were played in the major leagues, the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees today were all-set to renew their drive toward the pennants.

Heading into the west, the Yanks stopped off in Philadelphia to open a series, while in other American League tussles Washington played at Boston, St. Louis at Cleveland and Chicago at Detroit.

Pics At St. Louis

The Cards were at home to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League feature, while Philadelphia came on to New York, Boston was at Brooklyn and Cincinnati continued its series with the Cubs at Chicago.

The latter setto slated for five games was started yesterday with the Reds scoring a 4 to 1 triumph and shoving the Cubs five full games out of the first division. The latter still cling to fifth place, however by a comfortable margin.

Bucky Walters hurled six hit ball and the Cubs made five errors to settle the issue in the series opener as the Reds maintained their efforts to climb still higher in the standings.

The victory left them 13½ games behind the pace-setting Cardinals but only 2½ behind the second place Pirates and one point ahead of the Dodgers, who dropped to fourth place.

Long Trips Ahead

That was the only game of the day as the clubs move to new sectors for long road trips—the eastern American Leaguers going west and the western National Leaguers getting ready to come into the east.

The Yankees make their last swing through the outlands with an eight game lead, but with a record of only 22 victories against 20 defeats on the road this season.

However, once they complete this final swing they will be back in the east for the finish, with 25 of their remaining games scheduled at the stadium.

Bombers Wallop Brass Shop, 10-2

Babbitt Shop Bombers walloped the Brass Shop (second turn), 10-2, Thursday at Dean Park.

The Johnson-Bronze series now favors the Bombers, 3-2.

Hudson's homer with the bases loaded and Evans' circuit smash featured. R. Tomelleo gathered three hits. Burrello and B. Goclano were standouts for the losers.

Score by innings R. H. E.

Terry Reichwein State Swat King

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 6—Terry Reichwein, only Pennsylvanian among the Navy V-12 trainees playing on the Penn State baseball team this summer, is hitting the ball at a merry clip.

The Centralia youth, who formerly cavorted in the outfield for George Washington University, has hit safely at least once in each of the five games played by the Nittany Lions. He collected two hits in each of four games.

With the lanky Marine in center field, Coach Joe Bedenk will close the abbreviated season against Colgate this week-end. The Lions will play at Hamilton, N. Y., on both Friday and Saturday and attempt to avenge the two one-run setbacks at the hands of the New Yorkers earlier this season.

Besides playing an exceptionally eye-catching on the cage court, "Billy" Andrews is proficient in baseball. Ex-Sheriff William Andrews, who has been watching players come and go for nearly a half century, predicts a bright future for his grandson. Says the ex-law officer: "You'll have to go far to see a youngster with as much poise. He's got a good curve and a pretty good fast ball." "Sugar" Robinson has received a similar order . . . .

The Morgrets pushed across what proved to be the winning marker in the fifth.

Frankie Colello, Kenny Parshell and Andy Russo fired the most damaging blows for the winners while Suzow starred for the losers.

American Runners Joyful; Hagg Farewell Wednesday

By LAWTON CARVER

(International News Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—We will see the last of Gunder the wonder in this country next Wednesday when he will make his farewell run here at Randall's island in what the AAU choses to call the "mile of the century", a race especially rigged to produce a record-breaking run by the long-legged Swede. A four minute mile? Yes and no, mostly the latter.

Runs Again Saturday

In his last appearance before he comes here for the grand finale Hagg will run Saturday night at Cincinnati—run and win as usual. By this time everybody is convinced that he is unbeatable, and they have rigged up handicaps for his race here next week to make it possible for one of his opponents to push him to the record. Other than that the element of competition is about equal to that to be found in a prize fight between Joe Louis and Joe Blow.

Ex-Dodger Star Gives Up Game For Ranch Life

First Sacker Sincerely Believes He's Through; Hitting Below .250

DECISION TOUGH BREAK FOR GIANTS

By LAWTON CARVER

(International News Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Dolph Camilli is completely happy for the first time this baseball season — ironically happy because his baseball career is over, he has shaken himself free and in a few days will be headed with his fine family back to his California ranch.

In declining to join the Giants Camilli explained at great length exactly where he stood. He wasn't passing them up merely because they are in the cellar.

Figures He's Through

He sincerely figures he is through. He can't get his bat round as he used to and many a ball that he would have pulled over the fence when he was at his best has turned into an unpretentious little slice into left field this season. He is hitting below .250—or was when the Dodgers dealt him off to the Giants last week. He lacks his old power. He isn't in the best of shape physically and hasn't been for two seasons. His ranch needs his care and his family wants him there at home.

As he explained to President Horace Stoneham and Manager Mel Ott of the Giants yesterday, he has probably more friends among the Giants than with any other club, excepting Brooklyn and that is say-

Ryder Benefit Team Colorless Without Armour

By DAVIS J. WALSH

(International News Service Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—We're all trying to win the war in our own way, including those of us who are on permanent detail in charge of the officers' golf course. So we suppose there's no outstanding need to become distressed over a little thing like the fact that, even with a war charity at stake, the Ryder Cup matches are going on this week end in Detroit with a cast that seems unnecessarily second rate.

Either willfully, or through a very singular oversight, the name of Thomas D. Armour, former National Open champion, has been omitted from the list of those who are to set out to woo the charitable but always unpredictable dollar in

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Mountains out of mole hills grow which is true of the recent boxing show for the benefit of Deshon army hospital. It had a beginning approximately two months ago and while the profit has not yet been officially stated it was a success and in our way of figuring to the tune of about $2,700.

At the next to last boxing show in The Arena, Lieutenant Baker and some others from Deshon hospital were the guests of the Jefferson A. C. and the benefit was broached, decided upon and after the last show in the Arena, Lieutenant Ferry, public relations officer, came to the city and clinched the affair.

During the discussion in the Jefferson A. C. at which the writer was present, it was at first decided to stage the show July 27, but Lieutenant Ferry said he would be away from the hospital that day, so July 30 was designated.

In the meanwhile some citizens went to entertain the boys at the hospital and came back with a story that caused a wrenching of the heart. Within a few days prominent citizens became interested, the meeting in The Castleton was arranged, the show was planned, put through and that's the history of the benefit.

Patsy Brannigan, former bantam and featherweight, visited here yesterday, being on the last leg of a vacation. He visited with Superior Court Judge Maxey in Scranton then spent some time with his cousin, Joe Brannigan, who is in New York. Brannigan said the request to referee here went to Pittsburgh during his absence. He did not know of the benefit show for the wounded soldiers until he reached here yesterday. He explained he would have been glad to have officiated.

ing a lot because he is universally popular.' But he knows he can't help the Giants any more than he could help the Dodgers.

Against all the reasons for his quitting baseball there could have been only one to make him stay—the $7,000 that he would have received for the rest of the season.

He has been in baseball 18 years.

CO-EDS BREAKING IN

To overcome the manpower shortage, Penn State may use co-ed cheerleaders for the first time this year.

Navy V-12 traineers have won four of the six positions on the Penn State tennis team this summer.

Tropi-tex Slacks

You know how easily the average Summer slack wrinkles.

But not Tropi-tex — not even in the hottest weather.

The reason is — it's a fine 100% pure worsted.

But it's an open weave — lets the heat out and the breezes in.

RYDER BENEFIT TEAM COLORLESS WITHOUT ARMOUR

through the wickets at Plum Hollow. We called Armour last night to ask him why he had not been invited.

"I would have been extremely surprised," said he, promptly, "if I had been invited," and then declined to elaborate in any way.

Sounds Little Insane

It sounds a little insane, but it's probable that Armour wasn't asked because he once wrote a magazine article that deeply wounded a sport writer.

You might well ask what all this has to do with the American Red Cross, and the fact that it would like to benefit from the presence of a golfer who, first of all, was a hero of World War One, and, second, is an admitted showman beside whom some of the others seem pale and insipid by contrast.

All we know, in fact, is that of the men officially named, they're mostly the kind—apart from Nelson, McSpaden, Demaret, Craig Wood, Jimmy Thomson, Sarazen and Hagen—That won't draw caricatures. Yet when one of them, Ed Dudley, was forced to withdraw, Armour still wasn't asked to attend.

U. S. RUNNERS JOYFUL; GUNDER TO LEAVE SOON

improved miler, and Gil Dodds will run from scratch. Rudy Simms, Jim Rafferty, Don Burnham and Frank Martin will be given handicaps based on Hagg's 4:04.5, which was a world record until Arne Andersson was questionably clocked in better time in Sweden a couple of weeks ago.

If we don't see the four-minute mile here, it seems likely that they will come up with it soon after Hagg returns to Sweden. Or as soon as some races are arranged between him and Andersson. Given perfect conditions and proper pacing on the part of either or both, the long talked about "impossible" will be accomplished.

Hulse Major Surprise

The one thing it has done from a competitive standpoint that is most interesting to this country has to do with the way Hulse suddenly has come to life as a miler.

When he was clocked the other night in 4:06 flat in running second to Hagg's 4:05.4, he tore off the fastest mile ever run by any American except Glen Cunningham, who did his 4:04.4 under conditions that prevented the fine effort from being accepted as a world record. He ran on a fast indoor track and virtually was paced. Only Hagg and Andersson have bettered that 4:06 outdoors among all the men who have donned and doffed spikes through all the years and Hulse thus stands as the surprise of this campaign.

RIVALS LOOKING AHEAD

With Navy V-12 traineers bolstering both teams, Penn State and Bucknell, are looking forward to their 33rd football meeting at State College, September 25.

NOW CORNELL MILER

Dick Kuhns, Erie, finished second when he made his first start as a Cornel miler against Penn State this summer. Kuhns, a Navy V-12 trainee, formerly attended State.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

We should not become over optimistic concerning the war. It hasn't been won by a long ways but it can be shortened if everyone does his and her part. That means from the President down to the boy who carries messages from office to office. While we work dilligently with one hand making war materials for our fighting forces, we should know what the other hand is doing to our destiny. In other words we can't go to sleep at the switch concerning the American Form of government. Too many things are happening that smell badly . . . Just this week some of our old fashioned representatives in Washington (God bless 'em) stepped in and did away with John Bovingdon the then current Chief Analyst for OEW . . . this OEW was set up recently under Leo Crowley after President Roosevelt intervened in the nasty quarrel of V. P. Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jones . . and Bovingdon was to have received $5,600 per year . . . the way we gather the story is that said Bovingdon was a Nudist Advocate for the past 20 years or so . . . and had spent considerable time in Russia and then spent the past few years here in the U. S. A. heading the communist party . . . that was in 1938 and thereabouts. He also taught school in Japan but most of his time was spent teaching dancing with his theme, symbolic numbers . . . meaning that he preferred to dance in nothing but a loin cloth . . . So much for that, he's out but not because the people in general raised up in arms but because the men we sent to Washington were beginning to get a little hot under the collar.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN STOCK PRICES

Trading Is Slow And Only Transactions Also Slightly Lower

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 — The stock market drifted lower today after an irregular opening. Outside of a few isolated weak blue chips, price changes were only fractional.

Trading was slow with sales running around yesterday's 541,630 shares.

Chemicals, with Dow Chemical and DuPont both off a point or more at their lows, were weak as were the rails, motors, mail orders, and communications. Steels and utilities were mixed.

American Telephone was a prominent blue chip loser, off more than 2 points at one time. Showing major fractional losses were such leaders as Montgomery Ward, Chrysler, General Motors, Atchison, and U. S. Rubber.

The soft drink shares attracted considerable attention, with both Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola off a point or more at their lows. Curtis Publishing added a fraction to the gain recorded yesterday.

O'Tousa, now stationed at San Marcos, Texas, as navigation inspector, has been decorated with the Air Medal. Lieut. O'Tousa received this award for meritorius achievement, while participating in an aerial flight over Rabaul, New Britain.

The letter received by Mrs. O'Tousa reads as follows: Dear Mrs. O'Tousa: Recently your son, Lieut. Joseph E. O'Tousa was decorated with the Air Medal. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow airmen, his country, his home and to you.

He was cited for meritorious achievement while participating in an aerial flight over Rabaul, New Britain.

He was a member of the crew of a heavy bomber engaged in a bombing mission against the hostile shipping in the harbor. Two vessels were sighted and a bombing run was made on a transport ship. Despite intense anti-aircraft fire bombs were dropped near the vessel which began to burn and later exploded. Later reconnaissance reported the vessel beached in the harbor and completely useless.

Almost every hour of every day your son, and the sons of other American mothers are doing just such things as that here in the Southwest Pacific.

Their is a very real and very tangible contribution to victory and to peace.

I would like to tell you how genuinely proud I am to have had men such as your son in my command, and how gratified I am to know that young Americans with such courage and resourcefulness are fighting our country's battle against the aggressor nations.

You, Mrs. O'Tousa, have every reason to share that pride and gratification."

Very sincerely,
George C. Kenny,
Lieutenant General
Commanding.

Koppel Flier Dies In Crash Enroute Home

Flying To Home From Florida, Plane Crashes Near Washington, Pa.

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 6.—Death intervened Thursday to cut short the route which a Beaver County flier had charted to bring him here for a reunion with his parents.

Stationed at Tyndall Field, Fla., Lieut. Donald R. Marshall, of Koppel, Beaver County, was ordered out on a 1000-mile cross-country flight, to do his own piloting and navigating and also to choose his own route.

"I have also been granted permission to make one 24-hour stop," he wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Marshall. "So I've selected Pittsburgh and hope to see you soon at the Allegheny County airport."

Finally orders came to take off and Lieut. Marshall, accompanied by Private F. E. O'Dell, headed for the Pittsburgh rendezvous.

But as the single-engine army trainer approached the Pennsylvania border the plane developed trouble and Private O'Dell bailed out over Potomac, W. Va. Lieut Marshall, however, eager for that meeting with his parents, decided to push on to Pittsburgh.

And he almost made it. As he neared the Allegheny County airport he searched desperately through the darkened sky for a place to land. When his plane came down it crashed on a farm just outside of Washington, Pa., near the tri-state border, and Lieut. Marshall was killed instantly.

Military Execution At Camp Claiborne

Court Martial Findings Were Confirmed By Highest Officials

(International News Service)

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La., Aug. 6. Walter J. Bohn, 26year-old United States army private from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was executed today at Camp Claiborne.

Convicted on three charges—criminal assault, house-breaking and larceny—Bohn was tried and found guilty by a general court martial held at Camp Claiborne last Jan. 29.

He was pronounced dead 12 minutes after the trap was sprung at 5:08 a. m.

It was the first military execution in Louisiana since the Civil war, and the second in the Eighth Service Command.

The findings of the general court martial were confirmed by Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan, commanding general, Eighth Service Command, reviewed by the judge advocate general of the United States Army, and approved by the president of the United States.

The crimes of which Bohn was convicted were committed Jan. 8, 1943. Bohn was accused of entering a household in Alexandria on the pretext of getting something to drink, and criminally assaulting a 26-year-old housewife. He then fled from the house accosted another woman in a car, and stole a purse containing $46.

Private Bohn mounted the scaffold erected on the reservation and the only words audible to the witnesses were a constantly repeated "Jesus have mercy."

The execution was witnessed by designated staff officers of Camp Claiborne and members of the press.

Hanging was chosen rather than death by musketry, because the heinousness of the crime made it mandatory in accordance with Article 92, of the articles of war.
